Bold Plan Troops To Quit Algeria

PARIS (AP)—President de Gaulle boldly announced last night he intends to withdraw the bulk of the French army of nearly 500,000 men from Algeria during 1962. The immediate upshot was wild, bloody rioting in Oran, a big Western Algerian seaport.

First reports of casualties in the Oran fighting between French military patrols and armed bands of Europeans said two Jewish boys and a French marine were killed.

The new example of de Gaulle's repeated determination to come to terms with Algerian nationalists in the face of French rightist opposition infuriated the Oran mobs. They jammed his broadcast announcement and put on a bitterly anti-de Gaulle broadcast of their own.

PEAKS ON RADIO, TV

The president, speaking on radio and television in a year-end program, coupled his announcement with a prediction of an accord with the Algerian rebels which would keep close ties between France and an independent Algeria.

De Gaulle also foresaw probable negotiations with Russia on the future of Germany and other world problems, and he pledged France's "constructive participation." But he conditioned this on Kremlin relaxation of world tensions by ceasing its threats and menaces.

BACK INTO BALANCE
The speech said France should lead Europe back into balance, and not merely be the machinery for extending Soviet control of the continent.

The withdrawal, already begun with the transfer of two divisions from Algeria in eastern France in recent months, is to be speeded up.

De Gaulle promised to modernize the army in the coming year. This may have referred to his plans for an independent French nuclear striking force.

DE GAULLE LAUDED
At rebel headquarters in Tunisia, Algerian nationalist sources termed the president's announcement good, and said it shows de Gaulle really intends to pave the way for a peaceful settlement of the armed rebellion—now in its eighth year.

In speaking of Algeria, de Gaulle said:

'END SITUATION'
"France intends to end one way or another the present situation of political, economic, financial, administrative and military engagement, which if it remains as it is, can only be an enterprise of men and money, but which in the end must be done elsewhere."

City Boy Disappears Police Start Dragnet

Greater Victoria police launched a dragnet at 10:30 p.m. last night for a six-year-old boy who had been missing from his 1327 Walnut Street home since 2 p.m.

Ricky Bell was last seen by his father Richard at that time.

Police were notified he was missing at 9:35 p.m.

The boy is described as fair with blue eyes, wearing black pants, black shoes, a blue shirt, black sweater and a dark coat.

Police began their search by combing the immediate neighborhood and contacting all known relatives.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Is this man a loving husband—or just a coward?

"One Christmas Day it began to snow in the morning," he told me. "My neighbor and I went out with brooms and swept off the steps in the district."

"As soon as we reached the top step, the people in the house invited us in for a drink."

"At one house we drank

Scotch, the next house rye, then beer, then wine. . . . I went home. My wife had dinner nicely cooked. I sniffed the pleasant smell of it, and lay down for a short nap."

"When I awoke, it was six hours later, and dinner was over."

"Ever since that day I have religiously cooked Christmas dinner for my wife."

A Long Penance?

I looked at him in surprise. "Don't you think that is a long penance for a comparatively mild offence?" I asked.

"Oh, no," he said. "I like to cook, anyway."

My friend deserves praise for being candid. He likes to cook.

I suspect there are other husbands who like washing dishes, sweeping floors, tending babies, and pursuing other domestic hobbies after they come home from work.

Why shouldn't they, if it makes them happy? There is a good reason why they shouldn't. They set a poor example for other husbands, and for wives.

A Different Matter

It is all very well for a husband to play the martyr in an isolated farmhouse. But if he becomes his wife's slave in a settled district, where he can be seen, it is a far different matter.

One rotten husband can spoil a neighborhood, as surely as a rotten apple can spoil a barrel.

The next thing you know, all the wives in the neighborhood will be citing him as an example, and all of them will bully their husbands into doing the kitchen chores.

It is very nice and quaint for a husband to play the serving-man on Christmas Day, or New Year's Day. But the apron, once pinned on, is difficult to pry off.

It is a truism that all healthy women try to make slaves of their husbands, and all of them are thoroughly miserable if they succeed.

So watch it, men—on Christmas Day, New Year's Day and all through 1962.

Infections in Sinus Only One Cause Of Painful Catarrh

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the difference between sinus and catarrh? I have pains over and under the eyes and around the nose, and mucus dripping in the back of my throat.—Mrs. H.K.

Catarrh is a Greek word meaning to "flow down." It is a phlegm accumulating or dripping down the back of the throat. A runny nose from a cold is also, of course, a catarrhal condition.

"Sinus trouble" refers specifically to inflammation and congestion of the sinuses, that group of little "caverns" in the front skull bone. These sinuses are bathed in the fluid which normally covers all of the mucous membranes of the body. This drains into the nose.

PRESSURE BUILDS

If one or several of the sinuses become infected, there is increased and irritating drainage into the nose and thence to the throat. There may be some constriction of the small passages through which the drainage occurs, and pressure builds up in the sinuses. Pain around the eyes is often due to the infection or plugging of the passages of the sinuses in the forehead or cheeks.

Clearly there are causes for catarrh other than sinus infections. One of the commonest is excessive smoking. Allergy is another.

STRONG LIGHT

X-rays or an examination called "transillumination," in which a very strong light is used to show cloudy areas, can give considerable help in deciding what treatment or what changes in habits may help.

Polyps in the nose or a deviated septum can be involved in catarrh; polyps can be and often are a factor in sinus trouble. Infected tonsils and adenoids can also be involved.

Dear Dr. Molner: I'm forever dropping things and don't have too much sensation in my hands. I don't know what kind of specialist to consult.—Mrs. J.K.

This condition certainly should be checked. Without further facts, it is impossible to guess which of several things may be involved. The medical society or hospital can recommend a new physician for you.

To P.F.: No alcoholism is not inherited. And a young man who won't touch a drop is a good candidate to remain sober always.

Alice Springs Disaster Area

DARWIN (Reuters)—A drought that has killed thousands of cattle and threatens widespread soil erosion has been declared a national disaster in the Alice Springs area of central Australia.

Saanich Assets Are Vulnerable

Retiring Reeve Will Fight for Help

REEVE CHATTERTON
... past of progress

Unmatched scenery and a balmy climate make Saanich the "finest place to live" in all Canada, retiring Reeve George Chatterton said last night.

He warned, however, that "this great asset can be rapidly destroyed" by neglect.

"I believe the best efforts of future Saanich councils should be directed to making the best use of our scenery and climate," said Mr. Chatterton.

During the five years he served as reeve "major steps" were made in this direction, he said.

The problem of orderly development of residential areas, parklands and beaches, and light industry, remains "an over-riding feature of all the problems that Saanich will face in the future," said Mr. Chatterton.

His retirement from municipal politics, effective Sunday, will enable him to devote full time to the job of member of Parliament for Esquimalt-Saanich.

Mr. Chatterton said he will fight in the Commons for recognition by the federal government of a greater share in the responsibility for municipal government throughout the nation.

"I'm aware that the British North America Act legally prevents the federal government from entering the field of local government. But I believe there should be an amendment to allow greater federal incentive programs for municipalities.

"It stands to reason that the orderly and prosperous growth of communities throughout the nation—80 per cent of all Canadians live in incorporated areas—will make a stronger and more vigorous Canada," said Mr. Chatterton.

He said the federal government has already edged into the field of local government incentives by providing grants for winter work, urban renewal and pollution control.

Reviewing the past year, the retiring reeve said among major objectives reached were two sewer installations almost completed, the police-fire headquarters under construction, a new health and welfare building in the planning stages, and agreement in principle on the establishment of a light industrial preserve.

Mr. Chatterton noted that the people of Saanich "more and more are appreciating the necessity and value of sewers" in areas where septic tanks have proved inadequate.

He also listed as "a major accomplishment" the decision by council to approve establishment of an area of up to 80 acres set aside for light industrial development. The area has been roughly defined in the vicinity of Royal Oak.

Major roadbuilding and public works programs are continuing.

Toads Fill Road

TERAMO, Italy (UPI)—Traffic on the road from Teramo to the Adriatic coast was blocked for several hours yesterday by an invasion of hundreds of toads.

Family Home Burns Out Second Time

ROYSTON—For the second time in four years the family of Ronald Hebert has been left homeless by fire.

The family's uninsured three-bedroom house was completely destroyed last night by a blaze which is thought to have started near the furnace.

In March of 1958 the Hebert home was all but razed by fire on the same site. Mr. Hebert burned down what was left of it and built anew.

DUNCAN—The proprietor of the Maple Bay Inn was acquitted in police court here of a charge of serving liquor to minors.

The youths told the court they had frequented beer parlors previously and had never been questioned about their age.

New Highway Sign

DUNCAN—The department of highways has agreed to erect a Maple Bay directional sign at the intersection of the Trans-Canada Highway and Trunk Road.

But the popular recreation centre will have to share billing with Victoria, Duncan city centre, Lake Cowichan and Nanaimo.

The department pointed out such signs do not give full value where more than three place names are involved.

DUNCAN—An old wooden structure, formerly occupied by the public health centre, and a familiar sight in Duncan for many years, changed its location yesterday when it was moved on a heavy trailer along James Street, and the Trans-

Canada Highway to a new foundation on Bell McKinnon Road where it will serve as a private residence.

The building became vacant at the beginning of December, after the public health centre occupied its new quarters at the corner of Canada Ave. and Third Street.

The 14-ton load travelled the distance of five miles in approximately one and a half hours. W. O. Brown Building Movers, Duncan, which moved the structure, recently completed another moving job at Nanaimo when seven buildings on Stewart Avenue were hauled to new locations to make room for a new four-lane highway approaching the government ferry slip at Departure Bay.

Salesman Convicted

DUNCAN—A Vancouver salesman who pleaded not guilty to a charge of having exceeded the speed limit Oct. 14 on Trans-Canada Highway south of Duncan was convicted in police court and fined $50.

Magistrate A. C. Sutton told C. M. Mante he will ask the superintendent of motor vehicles to suspend his licence for 30 days.

Police said they chased the accused, who was driving a sports car, for a distance of eight miles near the summit of the Malahat at speeds up to 75 m.p.h. A constable said the red flashing light and the siren on his car been in operation while he tried to catch up with Mante's car.

He said accused passed about 10 cars in that distance. "It was not until I increased the speed up to 85 m.p.h. before I could gain on Mante," he said.

Accused denied having travelled over 60 m.p.h. He said he neither saw nor heard warn-

Britain Speeds Empire's Liquidation

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain's empire is approaching the end of 1961, and the government is forging ahead with the liquidation of Her Majesty's Empire.

The last 12 months saw four of Britain's African territories—Tanganyika, Southern Rhodesia, Northern Cameroons and was assisted by a co-operative British government with a policy of self-government by orderly stages.

The policy has achieved independence for most of the empire which at the end of the Second World War embraced more than 300,000,000 people

Two weeks later a round-table conference is scheduled here on the future of Kenya where independence is expected late in 1961 or early in 1963.

British Guiana, which received limited self-rule this year, also is expected to receive a decision in coming months on

Negro nationalists have stepped up their campaign to break up the federation and end white rule while white settlers have fiercely resisted a liberal constitution extending the franchise to Negroes.

Despite the breakup of the empire, Britain witnessed with satisfaction the growth in 1961 of the Commonwealth which gained three new members—Tanganyika, Cyprus and Sierra Leone.

The Commonwealth now has 13 full member nations, of which nine are non-white, and represents about 735,000,000 people.

Goa 'Weakness'

Bad Year at UN Adlai Reports

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Adlai Stevenson, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, told President Kennedy Friday that UN failure to act against India's conquest of Portuguese Goa betrayed a weakness he said could endanger world peace.

In a report to Kennedy on UN operations this year, Stevenson tempered claims of success in some areas and a "hopeful" view of the Congo crisis with a sharp assault on India's take-over of Goa and two other Portuguese colonies on the west coast of India.

RUSSIAN VETO Stevenson previously had criticized India's action and a Russian veto which blocked UN action on it.

"The recent armed attack on Goa, and the inability of the UN Security Council to deal with such use of force quickly and decisively, remind us of the dangerous tendency of nations to apply one law in one part of the world or toward one group of states and a different law to others," Stevenson said.

Twain Outdone

THE STRATEGIC command of the National Liberal Party in planning its pre-election campaign against the Conservative government has apparently adopted as its motto the old Mark Twain saw of "Get your facts first, and then you can distort them as much as you please."

However high a tribute to the memory of the great American humorist this may be, and for all the delight he took in exposing the weaknesses of man to men, it is extremely unlikely that he would have been at all flattered to find one of his tongue-in-cheek quips taken quite so seriously.

Yet this is precisely what has happened—though, indeed, it may be claimed with some justification that Liberal headquarters has succeeded in going one better than Mark Twain inasmuch that it hasn't even bothered to get the facts first in order to distort them. It just distorts.

An outstanding example of this is the Liberal Party's favorite—and almost perpetual—battle cry: "Canada has lost its prestige in the world under the Diefenbaker government." Carefully sidestepping fact—or misrepresenting it if it cannot be dodged—the Grits have bolstered their threadbare arguments by belittling Canada's role in the United Nations and blowing up the seriousness of the differences between Canada and Britain over the Common Market negotiations.

In a sleazy attempt to persuade the Canadian people that the government is deliberately destroying the high esteem in which Canada is held generally among all free nations of the world, the official Liberal Party publication, The Canadian Liberal, quotes with glee a statement made by an unnamed and unknown member of the French delegation to the United Nations, who recently said: "Last fall when we all knew there could be no progress on disarmament, there was your Mr. Green, full of piety, charging ahead with a completely unrealistic resolution. Frankly, we were all embarrassed."

This, the Liberal organ pointed out, was proof positive of the toppling Canadian image abroad. It is significant that it made no mention of Canada's positive contributions to the United Nations in 1961 as listed in a Canadian Press dispatch from UN headquarters.

Briefly these were the facts that it ignored: Canada was the moving force in getting through the General Assembly a resolution aimed at a $100,000,000 three-year food program utilizing surplus supplies to aid the hungry people in less fortunate countries.

Canada took the initiative in supporting a resolution for global study of radiation.

Canada co-sponsored a resolution to provide for a $200,000,000 UN bond issue to keep the world organization going.

Canada, through External Affairs Minister Howard Green, continued to emphasize that the main issue facing the world body is disarmament.

Canada is a member of the East-West committee investigating the peaceful uses of outer space.

Canada is also a member of the UN Laos truce team, and is the only country to provide the UN with troops and services for both the Middle East and The Congo.

These are but a few of Canada's accomplishments—accomplishments which not only fill every Canadian with pride but also give the lie to Liberal claims.

In the matter of British-Canadian relationships, the Grits would have it that Canadian prestige has so declined in the United Kingdom as to be non-existent.

Mr. Edward Heath, Britain's Lord Privy Seal, has himself answered that by announcing that he is coming to Ottawa early next month for high-level talks with Mr. Green and Finance Minister Donald Fleming.

If Canada's importance to Britain had declined as much as the Liberals would have this country believe, it is hardly likely that Mr. Heath, who is no less than the minister in charge of Common Market negotiations, would even set foot on our shore.

These then, are the facts. And if the past performances of the Liberal strategists are anything to go by, we may confidently wait for them also to be distorted in the near future.

Unless, of course, Grit headquarters takes to heart the true meaning of another Mark Twain saying: "We do not deal much in facts when we are contemplating ourselves."

The Nub of It

HIGHWAYS MINISTER GAGLIARDI says not many persons can beat him at car driving and no one doubts his competence at the wheel. Many an efficient driver of an automobile gets into trouble nevertheless because of carelessness or a fondness for speeding. Mr. Gagliardi's record is against him.

He claims to be a "most meticulous and very careful driver" but that scarcely jibes with six traffic charges in five years including three licence suspensions, the latest a three-month layoff to begin on January 2.

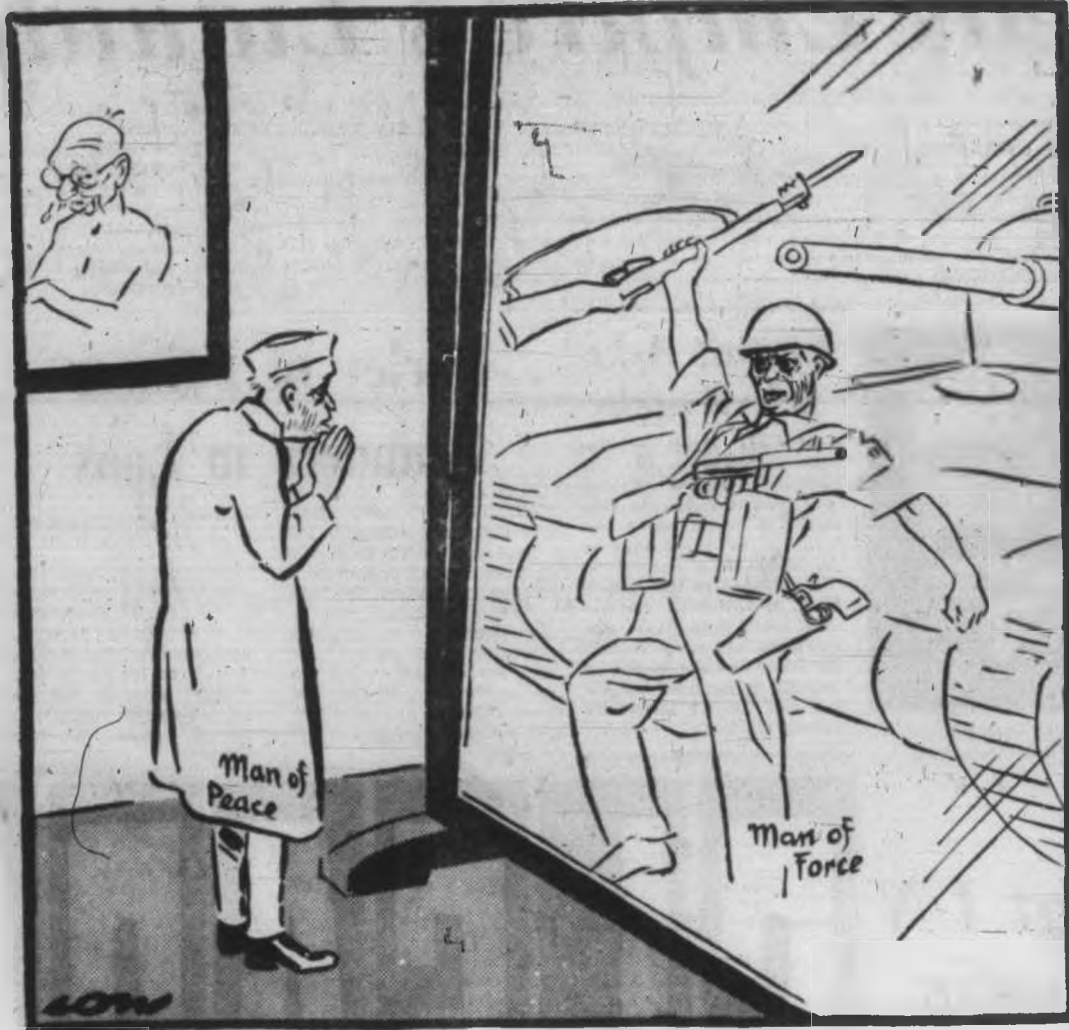

The highways minister is a busy man and may well have many public problems on his mind as he drives, but as the magistrate pointed out the criterion is care and attention to driving that is expected from all motorists. Most people who drive cars have personal worries which it is their duty to banish from mind while at the wheel.

Mr. Gagliardi is a dynamic and capable individual. His success at highway building well bears this out, but his very exuberance is probably a factor in the motoring difficulties that seem to beset him.

Were he an ordinary individual instead of a cabinet minister it would not matter so much, except of course that highway offences are a serious matter for all persons at all times, but his position as a member of the government which lays down the rules of the road carries with it a responsibility to set a good example.

That is what makes a Gagliardi speeding charge loom more importantly than one involving a private citizen. If the highways minister repeatedly seems to ignore the rules this tends to invite others to do likewise. That is the nub of Mr. Gagliardi's motoring trouble as it affects the public domain; it is also why his court appearances draw so much attention.

One would like to hope that these considerations will weigh more in future with the highways minister, notwithstanding his mechanical efficiency and without prejudice to his devotion to public affairs.

Report From Ottawa

Frightening Results

By ARTHUR BLAKELY

WAY back last March, Prime Minister Diefenbaker attended the closing sessions of the annual meeting of the Progressive Conservative Association of Canada and took the assembled delegates into his confidence.

It was common knowledge that there would be another general election by and by. But Mr. Diefenbaker came up with the prime election issue.

What was it? Why, "Free Enterprise vs. Socialism." What else?

"We in this party believe in free enterprise," Mr. Diefenbaker declared. "We will take our stand against socialism, old and new."

Among the latter, of course, Mr. Diefenbaker included the CCF-New Party people, who were soon to form what was to become officially to the surprise of some of the founding fathers the New Democratic Party. But in the same class, he placed, with evident regret, the Liberal Party. The Liberals, he felt, had gone so far to the left in recent policy changes as to become, to all intents and purposes, another socialist party.

Mr. Diefenbaker didn't seem at all angry when he said these things about his old adversaries, the Liberals. It was more a matter of being surprised and disappointed.

Anyway, that's the next election issue, as the Prime Minister saw it in mid-March. At his latest press conference, Mr. Diefenbaker was reminded of this. Did he still believe that the free enterprise vs. socialism issue was standing up?

The prime minister, it appeared, believed just that. The issue, in fact, seemed to him to be assuming larger and larger proportions with every passing day. He went on to intimate that he had been following the hustings speeches of National Liberal Leader Lester Pearson and of National NDP Leader T. C. Douglas with the keenest interest.

One reporter present on this occasion expressed certain doubts about the ability of voters to define either term in a period when all political parties, regardless of position in the political spectrum, are competing vigorously with promises of a bigger and better social security system.

There was just the slightest hint that the reporter in question was experiencing certain difficulties of his own in separating the free enterprise from the socialists.

The prime minister expressed deep regret that the press conference could scarcely provide him with enough time to assist him in this particular.

And matters ended there. But if the issue is an important one in the next federal election, the political parties may find themselves with a very real problem on their hands.

The Gallup Poll of Canada made a gallant attempt recently to find out just how well posted Canadian voters were on this kind of an election issue.

The results, however highly one regards the Canadian Institute of Public Opinion, were frightening.

What is socialism? Fifty-five per cent of those asked this leading question replied that they really couldn't say. Sixteen per cent suspected that it might have something to do with government control or "state control of industry." Six per cent took the happy view that it was "a fight for the common man," that it meant that "the government belongs to the people." Five per cent were sure that socialism meant "government ownership" of some kind or other.

Another nine per cent suspected that the word meant something pretty nasty, like communism, or near-communism, people being forced to do what they're told, or people being "run by a small group."

Six per cent regarded socialism as meaning that "the government does everything for the people," or "a welfare state" or "cradle to the grave" social protection, or "a planned economy."

Ab, but what of free enterprise? The Gallup people reported that 51 per cent couldn't or wouldn't attempt to define this term. Twenty per cent believed that it was connected in some way with private ownership, individual initiative, or a better deal for small business. An eclectic 15 per cent saw free enterprise as meaning freedom "to do as you want," or "freedom of people," or "freedom of speech" and/or "democracy." Three per cent viewed it with alarm as meaning big business, cartels, capitalism and monopolies. Two per cent were of the opinion that whatever it was, it was something Canada now had. And another two per cent were convinced, for some reason, that it had to do with free trade. Somehow or other.

All of which suggests that before the NDPers try to sell the voters on socialism, they've got a big job ahead explaining what it is. And when the Conservatives or the Liberals defend free enterprise, they would be well advised to define what it is that they're defending.

Between You and Me

Lotteries, Again

By MARGARET AITKEN, MP

WHEN Parliament reconvenes next month you can be sure there will be two or three private bills on the order paper to do with lotteries. It is a subject that interests the House of Commons very much.

Back in 1932 a free vote was taken in parliament on whether or not we should have a state lottery. It added up to 105 against lotteries and 57 for them. Most of the 57 MPs came from Quebec. The two leaders of that day, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett and Opposition Leader Mackenzie King, voted against lotteries.

In 1963 a joint committee of senators and members of parliament was set up to study three controversial subjects: capital punishment, corporal punishment and lotteries. That committee recommended against the introduction of a national lottery. It also recommended retention of capital and corporal punishment.

But now public opinion seems to be swinging around more and more to a wish for some kind of national lottery.

Last year in parliament L. J. Pigeon, MP for Joliette,

Many organizations presented briefs to the 1963 Parliamentary committee and most of them were against the introduction of lotteries.

The Protestant Churches claimed lotteries, or any kind of gambling, to be bad for people's morals. It was wrong to live in hopes of getting rich through luck, rather than hard work, and "organized gambling becomes the enemy of personal integrity." Police chiefs were more concerned with law enforcement in legal and gambling.

But there is one large group of people in Canada who do favor national lotteries. They are union members. Leslie Wismer, public relations director for the then Trades and Labor Congress, presented a brief to the committee not only requesting a state lottery but also that provincial attorneys should be given authority to grant permits for raffish.

Mr. Wismer refused to be drawn into an argument regarding the moral aspect of lotteries. He said they were popular with Canadians and should be legalized. And they were a good way of raising money for charity. He recommended many small prizes, rather than a few big ones, and that they should be subject to income tax. But the committee rejected this practical approach.

Mr. Pigeon said, in introducing his bill, "are the expressions of that instinct people have of taking a chance and the risk is very slim in proportion to what it may yield."

All the speakers agreed that gambling is inherent in human nature and you cannot enforce a law against public opinion.

Washington Calling

Driving Ambition

By MARQUIS CHILDS

THE drama of the Kennedy family, now underscored by the grave illness of the head of the clan, would be hard to match. It is a success story of outside dimensions, with overtones that relate to many of the principal themes in American life.

Joseph P. Kennedy has become a legend in his lifetime. The fact that one of the sons who rushed to his bedside is president of the United States, and another attorney-general owes more to the fierce, driving ambition of the senior Kennedy than will perhaps ever be clearly understood.

Arnold Toynbee's theory of challenge and response is perfectly illustrated in the Kennedy story. Set down in conservative, traditionalist Boston where every taboo worked against the Irish, the elder Kennedy was spurred on to tireless endeavor in his resolve to become a millionaire before the age of 35. Part of the legend is the remark he was supposed to have made when a Boston newspaper referred to him as an Irish-American:

"How long do you have to live in this country before you become an American? We've been here for two generations. Isn't that enough?"

He soon proved himself a master of the ruthless ways of high finance. After the stock market crash of 1929 he had a larger fortune by far than before the great slide began. The technique of selling short had not escaped him. About these matters Kennedy has always been secretive and one result is that the legend has grown.

But money was not enough. That is what gives this success story its special dimensions. One of the very few men of great wealth—his fortune has been estimated at $200,000,000 to $400,000,000—to throw in his lot with Franklin Roosevelt and the New Deal, Kennedy turned his driving, fiery ambition to government. Knowing all the tricks, he was well equipped to be the first chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission. Later he headed the Maritime Commission.

The climax came with his appointment as Ambassador to the Court of St. James's. Here was revenge on tradition, beat Boston, the home of the bean and the rod where the Cabbie speak only to Lowell and the Lowell speak only to God. The son of South Boston, whose family had come over at the time of Ireland's potato famine, was achieving the dream of every Anglophile American who believed that his money and his breeding might some day entitle him to that august ambassadorial post.

But Kennedy was far from being an Anglophile. He was an isolationist and he believed it would be fully for the United States to try to save Britain from the consequences of British failure to understand the significance of Hitler's drive for conquest. His second son, Jack, wrote a term paper at Harvard which became a best-selling book called "Why England Slept."

The two oldest boys, Joseph Jr. and Jack, worked closely with their father in the embassy at the start of the war. This was a closely knit clan and it would be hard to exaggerate the importance of the clan spirit. The father infused his children with his own driving energy and ambition, his own intense competitiveness.

That is part of the Kennedy legend. If Joe Jr. and Jack came in from a weekend sailing near Cape Cod and had to admit to their father that they had not come in first his wrath was such that weekend guests at the Kennedy place at Hyannis Port would scatter in terror. Family tennis and touch football games were fought with the same intensity. If you were a Kennedy you had to win.

The father did not, however, set their ambition on money. They all had enough money, with each of the nine children getting a trust fund of a million dollars which has since greatly increased. The goal was public service and you had to be first here, too. The death of Joe Jr. in a bombing raid was a heavy blow. But three sons remained to fulfill the family ambition.

How much influence has the elder Kennedy exerted on the president of the United States? In his conservative outlook, probably relatively little. He is said to have taken a more or less detached attitude on the difficult issues facing his son.

But this is one that the historians will have a fascinating time sorting out. A year ago a Kennedy won after a long and intensive struggle in which each member of the clan gave his all. Now for the son in the presidency winning is so much more complex, so infinitely more difficult, than the father could ever have imagined.

Taxing

Air Space

By Telegram News Service, from Hanover

GERMANS may soon be asked to pay taxes on air. Taxation of air is being considered by the state government of Lower Saxony, following a bill submitted by the ministry of economics declaring that air space above sidewalks and streets is the property of the state.

As a property of the state, the bill suggests, air space is taxable.

Should this bill be passed, signs which are fastened to the wall of a building and which protrude into the open space above the street would be taxable. The tax would be higher if the sign is illuminated.

Conspicuous machines sitting on the street would also be taxed since they take up space in state-owned open air.

Inteline: Europe

By OTTO VON HARNBURG

IN the discussion over Berlin and West Germany all too many judgments are based on superficial impressions. The Soviets, having taken the diplomatic initiative, give to the unthinking an impression of strength. This inclines many, even in our own ranks, to accept negotiations on Moscow's ground.

This is factually unjustified. We have a tendency to exaggerate our difficulties, while crediting the enemy with unlimited power, universal knowledge and unfailing accuracy. Of course it is dangerous to underestimate a potential rival; but it is nearly equally bad to overestimate him. The right kind of diplomacy demands a factual realistic evaluation.

We must thus keep in mind that the East, despite its monolithic appearance, does not form a homogeneous bloc on several great international questions. For Russia, Germany is primarily a function of United States power. Every-thing that weakens Washington is welcome in Moscow.

Consequently, no effort will be spared to detach Germany from the Atlantic alliance.

For states like Poland, on the other hand, Germany is in itself a political problem. Gomulka and his men have lived through a Polish-German war; they cannot imagine an American-Polish military conflict, except as the insignificant by-product of a world-wide catastrophe. Their political judgments are hence less influenced by America than by Germany's strength or weakness. NATO in their perspective is an alliance which puts the German troops under joint Western command: It is thus an effective guarantee against the possible use of the Bundeswehr for aims of national revenge. This positive appraisal clashes logically with Moscow's point of view.

The impact of these inner contradictions is vastly increased by the deep impression which the growing differences between the so-called Democratic Republic and the Federal Republic are making on the Soviet leaders. Khrushchev and his friends painfully realize the ever widening gap between the two Germany's economic and social standards. They know that Ulbricht's regime must rely for survival on the strength of the 24 Red Army divisions stationed on the Pankow Republic's soil.

East Germany is a dead weight the USSR must carry. It illustrates well Brezhnev's saying that one can do everything with bayonets, except to sit on them.

Today's Russian policy and Khrushchev's recent speeches betray the growing confusion of the Kremlin leaders. Having launched the adventure in Berlin, they are no longer able to extricate themselves from the situation they created. Though this may sound incredible to Westerners, the Soviets are today in Germany the prisoners of their own game. They have literally painted themselves into a corner. Their main hope is, that the democracies willingly or knowingly will help them escape their predicament.

These facts should show us the way to follow. The Russians have started the German crisis. It is up to them to end it. There is hence no reason to hurry the international negotiations which the Soviets need much more than we.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

FORESTERS in the north of Ontario report that they found two Canada geese in an open stretch of a river during the first week of December. This is several weeks after the wild geese have left for the south.

"We were able to get within a few feet of them in the outboard," say the foresters, "before the geese took wing and then they only flew a hundred yards or so before alighting again."

What the foresters were witnessing of course, is one of the great romances of wild life. The Canada goose mates for life, and rarely if ever does a goose select a new mate if the first is lost. What is probable in the case the foresters encountered was that one of the pair had either been injured or had grown too old to undertake the journey with the flock. So there the two of them were, sequestered in a lonely northern river soon to be bound in ice, and awaiting in companion ship the unquestioning fate nature affords her own.

Ice Dikes Save Alaska Village

Raging River Recedes

STEWART, B.C. (CP)—Dikes of snow and ice have apparently saved the little Alaskan border town of Hyder from inundation by the raging Salmon River.

Word reaching this northern B.C. community Friday from Hyder, across the Portland Canal, said the river's flood crest was apparently reached early in the morning and now is gradually receding.

CRUCIAL SPOTS

At the crest, the river level was higher than the bordering street level of Hyder. All the little town's 35 residents pitched in to help build up dikes of snow and ice at crucial spots. Evacuation was not necessary despite seepage into some Hyder homes.

GROUPS HELPING

State of Alaska engineering officials and B.C. department of highways bulldozers arrived in the embattled community to assist in the diking.

About 10 miles of road connecting Hyder with this community is under water but it has not been possible to estimate the damage.

DIKE SMASHED

Hyder was threatened when the river smashed out a dike. The dike had already been damaged in an October flood and had not been fully repaired when heavy snows and a mountain glacier poured thousands of gallons into the Salmon River as the weather turned warmer.

Hundreds of thousands of new 1962 licence plates will go on sale next week. New plates, shrimp pink digits on a chocolate-maroon background, replace plates expiring end of February. ## Teen-Ager Happy With 'Kidnapper'

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP)—A 15-year-old girl, who disappeared Nov. 2 with a 41-year-old grandfather, has written her mother saying she is "very happy."

Police in Ontario and Manitoba, meanwhile, were searching for unemployed carpenter Ray Hicks, charged with abduction in the disappearance of Lois Jean Ackerman.

Mrs. Joseph Ackerman, the girl's mother, said Thursday night she received a note, postmarked in Toronto the day after the highschool student disappeared, reading: "Dear mummy: Don't worry. I've got lots of money. I want you to let me come back on my own. Don't look for me. I'm very happy."

Queen Mother's Trip Means No June Vote

OTTAWA (Special)—June has been ruled out as an election month next year by the proposed visit of the Queen Mother.

The Canadian government has invited the Queen Mother to come to Canada mainly to participate in the centennial celebrations in Montreal of the Royal Highland Regiment of Canada. She is colon-in-chief of its Black Watch. The ceremonies will take place on June 8, 9 and 10.

TRAVELS TO OTTAWA

She will then travel to Ottawa to stay with Governor-General and Mrs. Georges Vanier. The detailed program will be announced later. But the fact she will be in the country rules out the possibility of an election at that time, or election campaigning.

49 Years in B.C.

Educator Thomas Hall Dies Here After Illness

Long-time British Columbia educator Thomas Hall, 78, died Thursday at his home, 1248 Burnside after a lengthy illness.

Born in West Hartlepool, England, he lived and worked for 49 years in Victoria and B.C. centres.

He was the first principal of Burnside School, and for many years headed George Jay School.

Later Mr. Hall was appointed Inspector of schools in the Cariboo and Peace River districts, Prince Rupert, Revelstoke and Abbotsford.

On retirement in 1916 he was registrar in the provincial education department, a position he held for three years.

Mr. Hall was a member of Vancouver and Quadra Lodge, AF & AM, No. 2, also the Pacific Club.

Surviving are wife Maude at home, three sisters and two nieces in England.

Private funeral services will be held at McCall's funeral home.

Birth Rate Falls

TOKYO (AP)—Japan's declining birth rate has dipped a bit more this year, nearing the world low levels of Sweden, Denmark and Britain. The reduction apparently is due to birth control measures in rural families.

Appeal by Gaglardi Scheduled Jan. 17

KAMLOOPS (CP)—An appeal by Highways Minister Gaglardi of his careless driving conviction will be heard Jan. 17. He was fined $75 and his licence was suspended for three months Thursday.

Mr. Gaglardi said: "If I felt in my heart and from every reasonable aspect that I am capable of understanding that I was guilty, I would never have contested the case in the first place."

Do I Look Like a Spy? Canadian Asked Czechs

LONDON (CP)—A 39-year-old Montrealer headed for home tonight two days after his release from a Czech jail where he spent 17 months of a seven-year sentence after being convicted of spying for a foreign power.

"I feel on top of the world," said Milorad Cop, a swarthy, studious-looking Czech-born economist.

ARRESTED IN PRAGUE

Cop was arrested in Prague in 1960, two days before the end of a two-week visit to his 12-year-old son by a former marriage there. A naturalized Canadian, Cop was held incommunicado by Czech police for a month before it was announced in July he was under arrest for complicity in espionage.

The Canadian government said it never could learn the precise nature of the charges against him.

Although advised by Canada

House officials in London not to talk of his experiences until after meeting with Canadian authorities, he described his trial and subsequent interrogation to reporters.

"Do I look like a spy?" he asked. "That's what I kept telling my interrogators. In fact I filled up 350 pages in arguing just that."

He arrived from Germany by air late yesterday where he was met by Canadian officials and whisked to London airport to catch a west-bound flight.

Cop was tried in November, 1960, after being held for four months. After a two-day hearing in a Czech court he was found guilty of spying and assisting in espionage against the Communist state.

CZECH LAWYER

He was defended by a Czech lawyer, Dr. Josef Krajs, "but even he believed me guilty," Cop said.

"I called him a clown. He wouldn't even read my statement to the court."

Cop, who left Czechoslovakia for Germany in 1951 on his way to Canada, was sentenced to seven years imprisonment.

He heard of his release Wednesday when a letter from the Czech department of justice was given to him.

"I was told my sentence had been remitted under a new act of clemency. I have not been unwell recently."

Prime Minister Diefenbaker had said Cop was in ill health and was being released on humanitarian grounds.

Mystery Man Is 200-Pounder

TIMMINS, Ont. (CP)—New information was received Friday from Nova Scotia about Timmins' mysterious stranger, Donald Parkhill.

Police have been baffled by Parkhill since Nov. 9, when they towed away a car registered in his name that accumulated eight unpaid parking tickets in the previous 11 days.

The impounded auto was never claimed.

Persons living at a Toronto address Parkhill used in registering his car never heard of him. Neither did the Toronto publishing house that a briefcase found in his car indicated were his employers.

Police in Middleton, N.S., Friday provided a description of Parkhill and informed Timmins he was operating the same vehicle a year ago when he was convicted of impaired driving in Middleton.

Parkhill was described as a

Seat Belts For John D

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker is getting seat belts installed in his car but the federal government apparently is not prepared to endorse the safety measure officially.

The government, officials say, will go only as far as promising a review of the question in answer to a request for "early installation" of safety belts in its vehicles.

Trade Parley Will Draw Eight Ministers

OTTAWA (CP)—Eight Canadian and United States cabinet ministers will meet here Jan. 12 and 13 for their annual conference on trade and economic affairs, it was announced last night.

Developments in trade with Western Europe, together with the problem of the stalemate over the Columbia River Power Treaty, are expected to be among the main topics of the two-day discussion.

It is the seventh annual meeting of the joint Canada-U.S. committee on trade and economic affairs, which last met in Washington March 13 and 14.

The announcement by External Affairs Minister Green gave no indication of topics to be discussed.

The Canadian members of the committee are Mr. Green, Finance Minister Fleming, Trade Minister Hees and Agriculture Minister Hamilton.

The United States will be represented by Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon, Interior Secretary Stewart Udall, Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman, Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges and Under-Secretary of State George Ball.

Canadian and U.S. trade relations with the European Common Market will be a key factor in the talks, experts assume.

On Dull Cricket Tour

Barrington's Bat Stands Out

LONDON (Special) — England's current cricket tour of India, Pakistan and Ceylon has brought few encouraging results on dry and dusty pitches, with one big exception—the spectacular batting feats of Surrey batsman Ken Barrington.

Seldom a quick run-maker but usually a coolly efficient one, Barrington has stood head and shoulders above his teammates and provided one of the few highlights in a series of dull drawn matches.

He has scored a century in each of the first four tests—once against Pakistan and three against the Indians—and was only 22 runs short of the 1,000 mark after 15 innings.

More than half of them—654 runs—have been made in test innings, including 500 runs against the Indians, who have managed to get him out only twice.

Barrington has been a model of concentrated efficiency against some good spin bowling that has proved troublesome to more than one of the England players battling for future test places. He has corrected some faults and sharpened his best weapons in flailing the attack almost non-stop.

SAVER DAY

While he has been criticized for lack of color and aggression, Barrington has rarely been in trouble in his test innings and has saved England from possible defeat on more than one occasion. In an early match in Pakistan he lashed out for 25 runs in one over, including three successive sixes.

Barrington has further strengthened his claim as one of England's leading batsmen but only captain Ted Dexter of Sussex and Geoff Pullar of Lancashire have come close to only twice.

Lineups Like Casualty Lists

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The six National Hockey League clubs reach the halfway mark in their 70-game season with some of the rosters resembling casualty lists.

Toronto Maple Leafs are without sparkplug Eddie Shack and young Dave Keon is hurt but may play.

BLOW TO HEAL

Chicago Black Hawks' Murray Balfour, who broke an arm during Stanley Cup play-offs last spring, still wears a leather brace on the lame wing. The healing process has been slower than expected.

Even young Claude Laforge, left winger called up by Detroit Red Wings from the American Hockey League, isn't 100 per cent fit. He wears a mask to protect a broken cheek bone.

Leaf coach Punch Imlach is feeling Keon, limping with a groin injury.

"He'll skate for 15 minutes Saturday, but that's all the work he'll get before our week-end set with Detroit."

Imlach anticipates trouble in the Saturday-Sunday back-to-back tussle with Detroit.

Red Wings are in fifth place, one point behind Chicago.

NEWED UP

As things now stand, Montreal Canadiens, Leafs and New York Rangers appear to have playoff positions sewed up. And Boston Bruins, with only seven wins in 34 games, are 28 games behind the league-leading Montrealers.

Chicago will have its work cut out in Montreal Saturday and Boston will visit New York on Sunday.

WARRIORS ANKED

Big Ed Litzenberger, who had a spectacular start with Detroit Red Wings, has been placed on the waiver list. Punch Imlach, who made a try for him last season, is reported interested.

The league winds up its holiday activity Monday night with Canadiens going to Chicago and Rangers moving into Boston.

Grey Cup Winners Top Team of Year

Plays Monday

TORONTO (CP) — The professionals received recognition from the country's sports editors and broadcasters in the 27th annual Canadian Press year-end poll Friday night when they rated Winnipeg Blue Bombers the outstanding Canadian team of 1961.

And they iced the cake for the pros by voting the Winnipeg-Hamilton Grey Cup football final won by Blue Bombers 21-14 as their biggest thrill and the Tiger-Cats as the comeback heroes of the year.

Last week, the pros lost out to teen-agers in the balloting for the outstanding male and female athletes. Bruce Kidd of Toronto, a rising world star in middle-distance running and to Mary Stewart, 16-year-old world champion swimmer from Vancouver.

Additionally, Kidd swept the honors as the outstanding athlete, male or female.

But there was no doubt about the professionals' supremacy in the outstanding team, thrill and comeback categories of the 10-question ballot. They won each by wide margins.

Bombers compiled 175 points and a first-place vote from 32 of the 73 who cast ballots. Nine others put them down as second choice and one gave them a third-choice vote.

Second place, and practically out of sight of the Bombers, were Trail Smoke Eaters who won the world amateur hockey championship by edging Czechoslovakia in the 12-day tournament at Geneva. The Smoke Eaters and Czechs ended in a point tie but Canada was awarded the title on goal average.

Smoke Eaters received only 59 points on five first-place ballots, 17 second and 10 third.

Peru Cagers To Play UBC

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Peruvian national basketball team will play exhibition games in Winnipeg, Saskatoon and Vancouver during an extended tour that also will take them to Alaska and the mainland United States.

A spokesman at the University of B.C. said the team has scheduled a game against the University of B.C. Feb. 7 and 8.

Calgary Fans Want 12th Man

CALGARY (CP) — Public reaction—at least in Calgary—is wholeheartedly against 11-man football, the general manager of Calgary Stampede reported Friday.

Jim Flinck said he has two letters, two petitions with more than 50 names, and the verbal testimony of "almost everybody I've talked to" indicating opposition to the rule change suggested by Ottawa Rough Riders.

The issue is due to come up at the annual Canadian Football League meeting in Vancouver Feb. 18-19. Flinck says it may not even come to a vote.

General managers of the nine CFL teams will have an earlier chance to talk the matter over when they attend the annual coaches' convention in Chicago Jan. 9. The decision then could be that dropping a man from the existing 12-man style would be too radical and tabling the plan in Vancouver would just be a formality, Flinck said.

Stampedeers are officially on the fence, waiting for fan reaction and the opinions of the other teams.

Club president George McMahon's view of the issue: "I do not speak for the rest of our directors, but I am pretty sure there will be no change from 12-man football."

Garden Notes

Flowers in Eggshells

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

One of my green-thumbed acquaintances has a rather neat trick in her gardening repertoire which seems to have some interesting possibilities.

Along about the middle of January she starts saving egg shells, decapitating the eggs neatly so that at least two-thirds of the shell is intact and with a nice clean edge. These shells are rinsed out and filled with sandy loam soil and are placed in an egg carton to hold them upright.

In each shell she sows one single seed of sweet alyssum—the little annual flower used ordinarily to make a low white or mauve border around a flower bed. It is important, for these eggshell plants, to select a very dwarf and compact variety such as Carpet of Snow or Little Gem.

The soil is kept just slightly moistened—my friend uses an eye dropper for watering them—and when the tiny seedlings come up, the carton is moved to a very sunny window of a cool room and the plants are grown on until they come into bloom.

Started during the last two weeks of January, the tiny plants are usually blooming in time for Easter. The eggshell containers are decorated with paint or egg dye and the miniature flowering plants, with all the lovely fragrance of the alyssum, are presented as Easter favors to her friends.

Her young son has delivered one of these gifts to our house on Easter morning for several years now, where it is placed in an egg cup and given pride of place on a low coffee table in our living room. This is a charming custom and one well worth adopting more widely, and I have often thought these tiny eggshell plants would find a ready sale in church bazaars and similar money-raising projects.

While browsing through a local nursery catalogue the other day, I was rather surprised to see the Washington plum tree listed, as I haven't run across a tree of this fine old variety for quite a few years now.

The story of the origin of this plum makes interesting reading. Along about the year 1790, a Mr. Bolmar, bought a young plum tree from a market woman who had a stall near the Fulton Street fish market in New York. Planted in the grounds of his Long Island home, it grew vigorously—but remained absolutely barren, and there was nothing Mr. Bolmar could do to persuade it to bear blossoms and fruit.

Then, one summer day, the stubborn and unco-operative tree was struck by lightning and destroyed completely, but the following spring, strong growths or suckers arose from the old root. These started to blossom quite early in life and bore the delicious fruit we know today as the Washington plum.

One of my downtown florist friends told me the following story:

He took on some extra help for the Christmas rush and, while these temporary clerks were willing and enthusiastic workers and pulled their weight, their lack of knowledge of the flowers and plants, they sold got them into frequent difficulties.

A woman came in the store, and after looking around, selected a particularly beautiful flowering plant and bought it. As it was being wrapped, she asked its name.

The girl looked perplexed. Then her eyes brightened as she spotted a small label in the pot. "This plant," she answered triumphantly, "is a 'Water Dally'."

Gentle Fable of Seduction

The trouble with "Les Liaisons Dangereuses"—the French film which succeeded "La Dolce Vita" at the Henry Miller Theatre (which is rapidly getting to be the exchequer's Rialto)—is that it has no credibility, to use a word popularized by Margaret Chase Smith.

This is the gentle fable about a husband and wife who not only condone one another's affairs but meddle in them. The condoning is immoral; the meddling is frankly preposterous. For instance the wife orders her husband to seduce a young girl who has become engaged to her lover. "But she's my cousin," he protests.

Later he pursues a veritable tower of chastity with the enthusiastic assistance and encouragement of his wife, plotting her seduction like a problem in psychological warfare. The objective—Annette Vadim—is certainly comprehensible to contemporary eyes; but the style is archaic. I simply don't know anyone who behaves this way. I don't think Roger Vadim, who directed it, does either. All the behavior, style of talk, the dialogue, the reasons people do things, simply don't resemble the way people behave now. That is the trouble with trying to put something written in the eighteenth century into modern clothes.

"La Dolce Vita," the Fellini film which preceded it, is certainly as daring, startling, sexy, immoral and all the rest of it. But it's also true, real and credible. The reason is that all the incidents happened. Fellini was a reporter before he was a screen writer and he observes real things before putting them down. All writers, whether they worked for a newspaper or not, are reporters—from Tolstoy to John Steinbeck—and the greatness of their writing can generally be measured by the sharpness of their eyes and ears and noses, by the accuracy of their perceptions.

One thing I've noticed in New York lately which I think of the highest significance: movies are discussed at the best dinner tables with the passion and intelligence once reserved for the stage. Certainly, there are more daring, intellectual, experimental avant garde things being done in the movies than on off stage or even, I suspect, on anyone else's stages.

I love European films because they seem to be produced by people whose fundamental aim is to express themselves rather than to please me (or, as most American films seem aimed, to please some 14-year-old delinquent). Ingmar Bergman's films, I read in The Saturday Review, are produced by a tiny staff of which he is the writer, director, cutter, and producer (to put those jobs in the order of their importance).

This preserves a purity of style and intent and mood that I find deeply moving, touching, emotionally satisfying. Bergman told David Lean, the distinguished British director, he worked on the set with 18 "friends," as he calls his staff. "Sometimes," Lean replied, "I think I work with 90 enemies."

Art Buchwald

Being Nuts Sells Well

PARIS—As has been our custom we talked to many people in 1961, and they said many things to us. To sum up the year we'd like to quote them again.

Mr. Gore Vidal, the playwright, discussing his defeat when he ran for Congress: "It's a terrible thing to be a loser in a political campaign. I was depressed until I started to read about other great losers. I think the greatest loser of our time was Thomas Dewey, who will always be remembered for his sublime refusal to shave off his mustache after the Presidential election of 1948, knowing that the mustache had contributed so much to his defeat."

Miss Iris Clert, the gallery owner, discussing the new wave of artists: "They're all crazy, and while they're like the Dadaists, there is one basic difference. Dadaism was a movement against art and it didn't sell. These people today can sell anything they do. Nowadays to be nuts is to be commercial."

Master Gregory, professional racing driver, when asked why he considered driving in Paris much more dangerous than driving in competition: "When you're in a race, you're driving against 24 or 25 other guys, all of whom you know. But when you're driving in Paris, you're racing against a million Frenchmen, and you're sure they all hate you."

Robert Frost discussing Carl Sandburg: "Our great difference is our approach to poetry. I'd just as soon write free verse as play tennis with the net down. I have no quarrel with him. But I don't like people telling me we have the same kind of hair."

Cof. Dina Wirth on training the Israeli woman's army: "Our problem is not keeping the girls (recruits) in the camp, but keeping their parents out. No amount of barbed wire or mine fields can stop a mother or father from sneaking into the camp to deliver a jar of chopped chicken liver."

The lady at the American Embassy in Paris, when asked during the attempted coup d'etat in April how the Embassy would notify the Americans of trouble: "If there is any serious trouble we will notify you by mail."

James Michener on overtyping: "I have another one of those guidebooks which warns that waiters and maids will be offended if you tip them more than is customary. Could you please seek one of these out for me and tell me as to how offended he is by what percentage of each overtip?"

Fritz Loewe, who wrote "My Fair Lady," explaining why he preferred the French Riviera: "At least here I know they love me for my money and not myself."

A Russian Intourist guide explaining to singer Eddie Fisher how Trotsky died: "He was hit over the head with a bottle at a drunken party in Mexico."

Nunnally Johnson discussing avant garde plays: "The drama critic is absolutely essential to an avant garde play. He not only explains to the reader what the play is all about—he also explains it to the playwright."

Hollywood Today

Marlon Clings to 'Mutiny' Girl

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Marlon Brando and Metro are two good reasons why 19-year-old Tarita is remaining in Hollywood until after New Year. The Polynesian actress, who dates only Brando, has promised to stay here a bit longer to help promote their "Mutiny on the Bounty." She's Marlon's girl in this movie, and the actor seems to have taken the role literally.

June Havoc was in the seventh or eighth heaven of joy when she called me on the phone—to have David Merrick producing and Gower Champion directing is a tremendous coup for a girl with her first play. June's play "The Marathon," which she based on her book "Early Havoc," is not a musical, she said, but "a play with incidental music. It's a drama and we'll use the popular dance songs of the '30s." June is back from her travels and lives with husband Bill Splers at their beach home in Malibu.

Tony Randall will retire from the screen for quite a while after he finishes "Boy's Night Out" with Kim Novak and James Garner. He'll be working with Tyrone Guthrie in a repertory company in Minneapolis. Tony is excellent as the befuddled executive in "Lower Come Back," with Doris Day and Rock Hudson.

For a wild moment I thought Cary Grant was with Brigitte Bardot 't'other night. But it was Dyan Cannon, who looks like Brigitte and has the same interesting figure.

Charles Boyer, the lover-boy of the '30s and '40s, plays Glenn Ford's father in "Four Horsemen." They've been chatting about making another movie this spring in Europe.

June Allyson had good news during the holidays. She won't have to have another operation on her throat. She and Dick Powell will go off somewhere February. Dick promised her he would leave his "four star" tolling to be with June.

Jim Arness—big Matt Dillon of "Gunsmoke"—has his "Calderas Don't Count" book on the set, and he says by eating fats he has been losing weight.

Merle Oberon, who I thought had given up acting, has been seeing herself so much on the late late show that she really can't wait to get back into grease paint. And she was so anxious to sign Anthony George as her leading man in "Forbidden Garden"—which she will make in Mexico—that she called Lew Wasserman, head of MCA, to ask if he could spring Tony from his "Checkmate" series long enough to do the film. But it couldn't be done.

Monty Clift and Max Schell worked well together in "Judgment at Nuremberg." They will co-star again in "Day of the Damned," to be made in Italy and Vienna next summer with Edward Dmytryk directing.

With two children in the house, and a new baby, Roger Smith invited wife Victoria Shaw's parents from Australia to spend the holidays with them in Hollywood.

Martha Raye was a surprise at the Harold Adamson's party, in quiet mood, singing "Silent Night." Martha is here for a big role in Joe Pasternak's "Jumbo," with Doris Day and Stephen Boyd.

The Rossano Brazzis are lingering in Hollywood—"to discuss a few pictures," the likable Italian star said. I'm looking forward to seeing the treasures of Florence in Rossano's "Light in the Piazza," with Olivia de Havilland.

Everyone is wearing the new flattering wig—during the holiday parties—Debbie Reynolds has them in all colors: blonde, brunette, red, and brownette! Leslie Ball got several from Max Factor. Cyd Charisse, Barbara Stanwyck—name the star, she has a wig. Saves wear and tear under the dryer.

VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 30, 1961

Not Many Oases in New Year's Desert

If you're not planning a New Year's Eve party, better have the wife carry an extra-large purse to the supper club of your choice.

Since public parties on the big night cannot start until after midnight, what you put in the purse is your own affair.

However, Attorney-General Robert Bonner doesn't expect his department to be "at home" to complaints after 10 p.m.

Falling as it does on a Sunday, New Year's Eve in the local wine-and-dine spots promises to be both dry and devoid of dancing.

Strong police patrols and spot checks will be in wait for motorists who drive while drinking.

Saanich police Chief W. A. Pearson summed up the attitude of Greater Victoria's law enforcement officers: "Those drivers who have a few too many and ask us for help will get it—but those who try to drive while drinking will go into custody."

It's a Long Drought After Closing Hours

Party-goers who fail to buy their New Year liquor by 6 p.m. today will face a long dry spell. Government liquor stores will close sharp at 6 p.m. and remain closed until 10 a.m. Wednesday.

Good Outlook for 1962

Victoria, Oak Bay Set New Building Records

Saanich, Esquimalt Register Increases

Building boomed in Greater Victoria this year with new, all-time records set in Victoria and Oak Bay. Saanich and Esquimalt showed increases over last year's figures.

And building inspectors of the four municipalities all predicted a successful construction year in 1962 with Victoria and Saanich spokesmen looking for new records.

MORE DOLLAR VALUE

Only Victoria showed an increase in dollar value of new construction for the month of December over December, 1960.

Housing construction in all areas was well above last year's figures with the most dramatic increase in Esquimalt—almost double.

Victoria building inspector Roderick Clark reported less than 10 per cent of the year's total represented downtown construction.

CITY'S NEW RECORD

The year's dollar total was $10,738,391, compared with $9,394,929 in 1960—a rise of 12 per cent. The city's new record was set mainly through building permits issued in November for the $2,600,000 Royal Jubilee Hospital building program.

MOTEL BUILDING

Helping set the record was some $800,000 worth of motel construction and $1,500,000 for apartment construction.

Two $1,000,000 projects in Saanich helped boost that municipality's total above last year's figure of $6,354,889.

SHOPPING CENTRE

The Town and Country shopping centre and a large garden-apartment centre on Tillicum at the Trans-Canada Highway brought the 1961 total to $8,700,819, but it was still below the all-time record of more than $11,000,000, set in 1958.

FEWER HOUSES

Building inspector David Smith said house construction accounted for a smaller percentage of this year's total than it did last year.

In Oak Bay, Paul Cunningham reported a record-breaking total of $3,065,536 worth of construction, well above the figure set last year—$1,602,915.

ON DRAWING BOARD

Apartment construction helped account for the large increase and more apartment houses are on the drawing board for construction next year, he said.

The record was set despite a big drop in December values—$69,850 this year against $269,500 last year.

BELOW RECORD

Esquimalt building inspector William Edgington said this year's total of $1,893,991 was $800,000 over last year's total, but still below the all-time record of just over $2,000,000, set in 1958.

"We are looking for a reasonably good year next year and we think we will have it by the indications we have at present."

Silver Nail Final Clue To Wreck

A square silver nail, less than six inches long may hold the final clue to the identity of the wreck in Sidney, Inlet on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

All that must be done, according to the latest research findings, is to locate the nail which is traditionally embedded in the keel at the point where it joins the stem.

NAME AND DATE

The nail should be inscribed with the name of the ship, date the keel was laid and tonnage.

The clue that will help navy divers in their needle-in-the-haystack search was unearthed in an old book on shipbuilding from the shelves of the library at the B.C. Maritime Museum.

The mine-sweeper James Bay will take a team of divers to the site Jan. 8.

Agile Thief Picks Picks

An open transom over a shop door proved a ready invitation to an agile thief who looted a downtown shop of 68 cartons of cigarettes and six packs of toothpicks early yesterday.

The loot was obtained from the Nut Shell, 617 Fort Street.

Lush Louis Lives On

Parrot Still Stops Progress

By TED PULFORD

Louis the Garrulous, a brandy-soaked parrot of indefinite vintage, continues to squat like a great feathered stumbling block in the path of progress, in his Courtney Street home.

Though property on either side of his ornate parrot house has been battered flat and turned into a parking lot, the guzzling parrot has been assured safety for his home for the rest of his days.

And—by the look of things he has a goodly number of days left to live. He's more than 100 years old already.

Louis was assured by the terms of his late owner's will of the ministrations of Chinese attendant Wah Wong, all the brandy his old skin would hold and his own roof over his head.

When Miss Victoria Wilson died in 1949, her will expressly provided that Louis was to remain on the property until he died and only then could his house and the surrounding buildings be torn down.

G. J. Shaffer and Capitol Car Parks Ltd. now own the property.

Owners of the car park hoped Louis might be somewhat of an attraction but—like many oracles—the parrot has become something of a recluse as well as a toadspot.

When I waited upon Louis the Garrulous yesterday, I was given the bird.

I peered through a window of the parrot house and called out, but I saw nothing but one bloodshot eye and a bundle of mouldering feathers.

It was clear, however, that Louis still lives. He turned his back on me and actually staggered to the other end of his perch.

All of this was acted out under the baleful glare of an immense locust whose name, I discovered later, was Fagin.

Fagin did nothing until I started rattling the wire mesh covering Louis' window; then he began hissing threateningly.

I left.

Apparently even Wah Wong, the parrot's faithful attendant, has found Louis too much for a steady companion.

Some time ago, Wong moved uptown and got married. He continues to minister to the ancient parrot, however, and calls in with food several times a week.

The parrot, Mr. Shaffer said, is in the pink of condition.

"The executor of the estate was failing me just the other day that the old bird will outlive both of us," he chuckled.

Driver Broke Ankle

Crash into ditch at Glenford and Vanalman yesterday resulted in fractured ankle and cuts for Mrs. M. B. Buckingham, 420 Vincent. Car is checked by Cpl. Frank Briers of Saanich police minutes after Mrs. Buckingham was whisked off to St. Joseph's Hospital.—(Robin Clarke photo.)

Boat Mystery

Child's Clothing Burned to Crisp

Shreds of scorched clothing found on the body of a two-year-old boy washed ashore at Gordon Head Thursday have indicated a connection between the dead child and the burned-out shell of a boat located nearby Wednesday.

Robinson Stewart of Saanich police said last night clothing the boy had been wearing had been "burned to a crisp."

LABELS MISSING

Police theorize the boy was an occupant of the 16-foot open boat found burned and drifting off Ten Mile Point.

So far, the clothing has led investigators nowhere. It bears no manufacturer's or dealer's labels.

Indications are the child was a member of an Indian family from the U.S. side of the border.

Saanich Police Chief W. A. Pearson, who heads the investigation here, said the boy was well and warmly dressed, but lack of underclothing indicated the child was from an Indian band.

Meanwhile, U.S. Coast Guard headquarters at Seattle has alerted all of its coastal stations to conduct a survey of remote Indian villages to find out if anyone is missing.

Indians here say the method of power—an outboard sunk in a well in the boat's bottom—is commonly used across the line.

Court Chides City Parker

Behavior of a motorist who parked his car in such a way as to impinge another car for 55 minutes was termed "boorish" by Magistrate William Oster in traffic court yesterday.

He imposed a fine of $5 on M. V. Dunn, Yarrow Building, who told the court he had not intended to be "malicious."

Freedom Appeal Rejected

By ED COSGROVE

A Supreme Court judge yesterday dismissed an application for a writ of habeas corpus that would free a 22-year-old Victoria man facing trial on four counts of drug possession and possession of stolen goods and housebreaking tools.

Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton, after a 2½-hour hearing in chambers, upheld commitment of Robert Gibb, saying he felt the Crown had presented a sufficient body of evidence to warrant Magistrate A. I. Thomas committing Gibb to higher court.

But the judge criticized the magistrate for refusing to hear objections of defence counsel David Hummel during preliminary hearings.

In a four-point submission to the Supreme Court, Mr. Hummel had contended his ability to represent his client had been hampered by the trial magistrate's attitude.

He said he had been told to "sit down" 15 times when he rose to object to admission of admissibility of evidence. He also was told he "would have his chance during cross-examination."

"The learned magistrate is under a misconception," said Mr. Justice Wootton. "Cross-examination cannot cure everything."

One Critical Point

"At one critical point (during cross-examination of a Crown witness)," said Mr. Hummel, "the magistrate felt constrained to come to the aid of the witness."

"I suggest there is a point beyond which counsel cannot properly discharge his duties to his client because of emotions generated by the attitude of the magistrate."

"I can quite understand," returned Mr. Justice Wootton, "I can see you had quite an experience there."

Mr. Hummel had launched an action for a writ of habeas corpus and certiorari-in-aid on the basis that the commitments were not supported by evidence, they were based on inadmissible evidence, the presiding magistrate "neglected to consider the evidence" and there was a "denial of natural justice."

He said the latter point did not apply in the hearing on the drug possession charge.

Gibb was arrested with two other men after RCMP and Saanich police raided a Craigflower auto court cabin last October. One of the men, Donald Gray, subsequently pleaded guilty to possession of drugs.

Housebreaking tools were found in the cabin and in a car owned by Gibb.

Reviewing the transcript, special prosecutor W. Berkeley Monteith said six capsules hidden in the sink contained heroin.

Pushing and Fixing

He said Gibb was found standing near a chest of drawers on which there was an empty hypodermic needle.

Gibb had his sleeve rolled up and a belt tied around his arm.

"It is inevitable for Your Lordship on the bench and myself as a counsel of some experience to learn the habits of drug addicts."

"In carrying on an operation such as this... Gray was, in the jargon used, pushing, while Gibb, in the same jargon, was fixing."

Saanich prosecutor Kenneth Murphy said he felt there had been no denial of natural justice nor improper presentation of evidence in the hearings on charges of possession of housebreaking tools and stolen goods.

Referring to a screwdriver found in Gibb's car, he said Gray had admitted using it for the burglary of the Oak Bay Boat House.

"Once (an instrument) is proven capable of being used for housebreaking, the onus shifts to the accused to prove a lawful reason for its possession," he said.

In dismissing the action, Mr. Justice Wootton said the Crown had assembled "evidence which must be heard somewhere," and, while the evidence might not be sufficient for conviction of Gibb, "that (decision) is not up to me."

He told Mr. Hummel: "I must congratulate you... you have handled yourself in an extremely capable fashion."

Money-No-Object Official Flew Happily Ever After

Peter Bruton's NOTEBOOK

ONLY ANGELS HAVE WINGS: Once upon a time, not so very long ago, there was this official who used an airplane a lot and decided it was high time it was equipped with all the latest radio equipment.

So the best available was obtained and fitted into the plane. Some said it even cost as much as $70,000.

Well, when they went to test the plane with all its new equipment safely installed, it was found the extra load was so heavy that new, more powerful engines had to be installed.

So this was done. But the equipment didn't work as well as it should—which was a bit of a blow—so the maintenance men began to experiment.

Finally they obtained a cheaper and simpler model—it only cost $2,500—and lo and behold it worked just as well as the $70,000 bundle of works.

So off flew the official, happy as a lark.

And all that expensive, heavy equipment was just stored in a dusty corner of an airport hangar.

John Wood, research assistant to Opposition Leader Robert Brackman, is going around wishing everyone a "Happy New Democratic Year!"

THE FOURTH ESTATE: The Edmonton Journal wrote asking Russia's Nikita Khrushchev if he could attend their Christmas reception. Three days after the event the newspaper received a telegram from Mr. Khrushchev stating: "I am grateful for your kind invitation to attend your reception of Dec. 18. Unfortunately, I was unable to accept it due to business commitments." Advertisement published here Thursday read: "One binocular case, reg. 0.00—Sale $3." Lance Whitaker wrote a two-column editorial in the latest issue of the Oak Bay Leader taking issue with the power views of B.C. Power Commission chairman, building a recreation and hobby room for the boys. They hope to finish it early in the New Year.

All in all it's a pretty nice gesture.

THE THINGS WE HEAR: Cariboo Sooner M.I.A. William Speare, who now lives in Victoria, has organized a new company which will advise on all aspects of planning, administration and operation of hospitals. He was formerly administrator of the hospital at Quesset... The Fort Nelson Golf and Country Club has been incorporated as a society under the Societies Act. At 40 below zero who can play golf?... Jack Dirom, the auctioneering proprietor of the Herreshoe News, was married last night at St. George's Presbyterian Church. The lucky lady was Mary Craig... In the latest issue of "The Native Voice" well-known Andy Paull, appealing for the rights of native Indians, says "Show us Christian justice, but give us justice first."

Lighting Deadline Extended

No far only two entries have been received.

Contest is open to amateur photographers. Pictures should be 2 1/2 by 3 1/2 or larger.

Prizes are a rose bowl, a flower basket and a bread tray all in sterling silver. They will be distributed by Miss Canada, Nina Holden, along with prizes for winners of the lighting contest, at a banquet at the Ingham Hotel at 7 p.m. Friday.

Canada to Double Number of Sirens - Defence Minister

CALGARY (CP)—Canada will almost double its number of warning sirens in the next eight months, said yesterday.

Urban areas were served by about 500 sirens during Exercise Tocsin "B" in November, and 300 have since been added. The number by August will be at least 1,500, Mr. Harkness said.

He reported a "very considerable amount of progress" evident in Tocsin "B" over the first tocsin exercise in May. "The first showed gaps, most of which were successfully closed by Tocsin "B," said the defence minister.

"However, there are still improvements to be made, particularly in the clearer demarcation of lines of authority during an alert."

Mr. Harkness described the recently-completed six-week military survival training course as "quite successful, although recruiting fell short of the 25,000-man goal by about 4,000. He predicted the second course would have its full complement of 25,000 by the time it starts Jan. 8.

The defence minister is at his Calgary home for a few days of the holiday season.

Prayer Week Jan. 8

A week of prayer under the sponsorship of the newly formed Evangelical Pastors' Fellowship will be held here commencing Jan. 8.

Meetings will be held at various churches with different pastors. Prayer week is being held in association with the World Evangelical Fellowship of London, England and will take place throughout the world.

THE VOICE OF ONE

By REV. DR. FRANK S. MORLEY

"If the first button of a man's coat is wrongly buttoned, all the rest will be crooked," said Giordano Bruno. The only remedy is to start all over again and do it right. We must begin correctly.

Many a man moans in self pity. "If I could only live my life over again! Why does he not live a new life? What hinders him? Such a man, hangs on to the mistakes and misdeeds of yesterday with the tenacity of a bulldog. He broods on minor handicaps until they become major excuses. What he needs is less selfishness and more love, less depressing doubt and more living faith.

Theodore Dreiser tells of looking for a truly happy man and finally discovering Charlie Potter at Norwich, Conn. He was beloved by all the neighborhood for his extraordinary kindness and unselfishness. As one man said: "He's a peculiar man, Charlie is. He believes in giving away nearly everything he has if anyone needs it. He'd give his coat off his back if you asked him for it."

The homeless could always find shelter under his roof. The hungry could always find food at his table. His life was poor and simple. When Dreiser asked him the secret of his radiant face he replied, "I need so very little for myself that I couldn't be very unhappy. I found out what I ought to do. I ought to love my fellow men."

Reunion in Kingston

Prisoner's Family Gets Best Present

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—A London, Ont., mother, who brought her three young children here to see their father in Kingston penitentiary said it was "the best Christmas present we've had since dad left the family."

The family was reunited again last night before returning to their London home. When the family met Thursday it was the first time the prisoner had seen his four-year-old son.

Two older boys hadn't seen their father since 1956 when he was sentenced to nine years and the mother, hard-pressed for funds, had made only one trip to Kingston in five years.

The reunion, the only present the children wanted for Christmas, was the gift of RCMP personnel at Bagotville, Que., who heard of the family's plight. London residents also contributed money and clothing to the family which has been living on relief payments.

Penitentiary officials said the father would be eligible for parole "at any time."

Mr. Walter Pettigrew and Mrs. Gladys C. Nixon were married in Christ Church Cathedral at a quiet ceremony recently by Dean Brian Whitlow. Dr. Rodney T. H. Nixon of 108 Mile House in the Cariboo gave his mother away. Mr. Gerald Harris supported the groom. Mr. and Mrs. Pettigrew will make their home at 825 Burdett Avenue.

Former Victorian Visits

Mrs. T. C. Smith of Seattle, formerly of Victoria, who is visiting here for the holidays, entertained at the tea hour Wednesday. Guests were Mrs. W. Mortimer, Mrs. Blair Reid, Mrs. H. I. McKenzie, Mrs. J. T. Jones, Mrs. A. Ketchell, Mrs. J. Slater, Mrs. H. Matthews, Mrs. J. Gibson and Mrs. E. Vautrin.

Out-of-Town Guests

Out-of-town guests at the Kirkham-Dawson wedding on Wednesday evening at First United Church were Mr. William McLachlan, Miss Corinne Farber, Miss Claire Willacott, Mr. Ross Craigie, Mr. Ken Burrows, and Miss Marion McComb, Vancouver; Mr. Douglas Graham, Regina and Mr. Fred Philip, Duncan.

Mrs. Jones Entertains

Mrs. J. T. Jones, Gorge Road West, was hostess to members of the Liberal Women's Forum recently, when an exchange of gifts and games were enjoyed. The tea table, covered with a lace cloth, was centred with a bowl of roses and rose-colored candles. Present were Mrs. H. I. McKenzie, Mrs. A. Ketchell, Mrs. F. Decker, Mrs. Chris Hunter, Mrs. Blair Reid, Mrs. M. Mosley, Mrs. M. McLean, Mrs. D. Mc Donald, Mrs. J. Slater, Mrs. L. Nicholls and Mrs. E. Varney.

For Miss Mona McConnell

Miss Mona McConnell and her mother, Mrs. A. C. McConnell were presented with flowers at a surprise miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. A. E. Towers, Bowker Avenue, for Miss McConnell, a bride-elect. Guests at the party were Mrs. William Weldon, Mrs. B. Higgs, Mrs. P. Margetta, Mrs. M. Anderson, Mrs. A. Barclay, Misses Gloria Shipley, Maureen Carey, Heather Eckford, Judy Eckford, Rita Lennaghan, Elizabeth Atkin, Tammy Hinch and Lynne McConnell.

Couple Married Recently

Canon H. J. Jones officiated at the ceremony in St. Mary's Anglican church Oak Bay on Dec. 23 that united Nerine Anne Hodgson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hodgson of Cape Town, South Africa, and Mr. Bryan Sydney Berting, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bryan Berting of 3405 Veterans Road.

Given in marriage by Mr. H. C. Hardwick, the bride was lovely in a classically styled floor-length gown of brocade in lily of the valley design. The skirt was slightly en train with bustle effect at the back. A dainty circlet of pearls in lily of the valley design held her bouffant veil of illusion tulle and pink roses were in her cascade bouquet.

Miss Eleanor 'Iprini, formerly of Cape Town, flew from Montreal to be maid of honor. Her royal blue satin gown was street length and complemented by a pale pink bandeau and cascade bouquet of pink chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Hardwick accompanied her husband and son Douglas, who was best man, from Oakville, Ont. Also in the party was Mr. Colin Mason from Toronto.

A reception followed in the home of the groom's parents, where a three-tier cake decorated with lily of the valley was cut.

Honey-moon will be spent touring the province before the newlyweds settle in their home at Fort St. John, B.C., where the groom is a land surveyor.

Students Present Program

Grade 3 students of Burnside School presented a pleasing program for residents of Rose Manor recently, when such diversified forms of entertainment as a French Minuet and a nativity tableau were presented.

The program took place in the new dining room extension which was decorated by Oak Bay United Church CGIT; sunshine bags were from the Salvation Army and home-made candy from St. Andrew's Explorer Girls. St. Margaret's Girls' School choir sang during the party.

Also offered to make the season a happy one for residents were Christmas con-sorts for the 150 residents and staff, and a bus ride during which the lighted houses were viewed.

ST. JOSEPH'S

St. Joseph's School of Nursing Alumnae will not meet in January, because of the holiday.

This week is one of entertaining, and the Empress Hotel's smorgasbord is a popular choice for dining out. Pictured at a holiday evening smorgasbord are, left to right, Mrs. Arthur Dowell, Mr. R. G. Culbertson, Mrs. Alfred Dowell, Mr. Arthur Dowell,

Mrs. Culbertson and Mr. Alfred Dowell. Mr. and Mrs. Culbertson were here from Seattle and were host and hostess that evening.—(Peter Chapman photo.)

Brian Smith and Barbara Courtney Wed in Christ Church Cathedral

Before the main altar in Christ Church Cathedral yesterday afternoon The Most Reverend Harold E. Sexton, Archbishop of British Columbia officiated at the wedding ceremony in which Miss Barbara Courtney became the bride of Mr. Brian Ray Douglas Smith.

The lovely, dark-haired bride was escorted to the altar by her father. She wore a gown of candlelight velvet fashioned with sculptured neckline lily point sleeves and a beautiful skirt of yards and yards of French silk velvet sweeping to a chapel train. A pearl chain held her French illusion veil. She carried gardenias.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Smith, Oakdown Road, had Lieut. Dick Macintosh as best man. Ushers were Mr. Robert Stewart of Montreal, Mr. Sandy Hood, Mr. David Anderson and Mr. Merlin Hawes.

After the ceremony, guests were received at the Union Club, where Mr. Harold Humdall proposed the toast to the bride.

For her going-away outfit the bride wore a three-piece camel-tone cashmere ensemble with nine-tenths swag coat and continental style suit with Chanel type jacket and full skirt. She wore a fur plated skirt. She wore a fur coat. Mr. and Mrs. Smith will make their home in Vancouver.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My mother-in-law never interferes nor makes demands, but she knows how to get what she wants in clever little ways.

She's been having dinner with us every Sunday for years. She arrives in a taxi and can well afford it, but when it comes time to go home she says "I think I'll call a cab"—instead of going ahead and doing it. Naturally, my husband says, "Oh no, Mother, we'll drive you."

When we get to the car she always asks where she should sit—instead of getting into the back seat where she belongs. Of course my husband says, "Sit in front with me, Mother."

This means I have to sit in back with the kids.

She's had some trouble with her hip but with a little effort she could get in the back seat and let husband and wife be together. You always say no one should come between a man and his wife. Right?—T. J.

Dear T. J.: If you think you are going to get me to support your shameful lack of consideration for your mother-in-law, by twisting my words, you've twisted the wrong cage.

She sounds like a lovely person. The fact that she arrives in a taxi and asks where to sit when she is being driven home, proves it. The least you can do is be gracious about driving her home once a week and letting her sit beside her son.

Dear Ann Landers: Please say something in defence of working mothers. The career girls in this office make cutting remarks about women who run away from their family obligations in order to buy luxuries.

I married a man who had a weakness for liquor. I thought he'd get better but instead he got worse. I had three babies in four years. When the children started to school they had to wear their cousin's cut-off clothes. We were barely able to pay rent and buy groceries. When the youngest boy was five I borrowed money from my brother and took a night-school business course. Today I have an excellent position and earn $110 a week.

We now have good furniture, a car, and the children no longer wear second-hand clothes.

Best Dressed In Paris Style

By NORA MARTIN

PARIS (TNS)—Babies who aspire to having their names on the best dressed list ought to wear French clothes... at least occasionally.

Viscount Linley, Princess Margaret's new baby, has just received his first Paris outfit, a lace-trimmed white baby dress, as a christening present. And Caroline, President and Mrs. Kennedy's daughter, also occasionally dons the "French Look."

The Grande Maison de Blanc in the heart of Paris is as famous for dressing infants as Dior is for dressing women. The director of this old-established troussseau and lingerie house said Viscount Linley probably wore one of their latest models on his christening day.

HISTORICAL ROSE "For the actual christening ceremony," the director said, "Princess Margaret's baby certainly wore an historical robe, a royal family heirloom. But a member of the British Embassy in Paris selected a hand-stitched white baby dress and lace-trimmed bonnet for Viscount Linley, possible for him to wear after the ceremony was over."

The knee-length dress is made of finest white batiste covered with white Valenciennes lace bands to a check pattern. A matching baby bonnet goes with it. In best French tradition the precious garments are entirely hand-stitched.

During her last visit to Paris, Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy selected a dress at the Grand Maison de Blanc as present for Caroline. This one was of white organdy with eyelet embroidery and a scallop at the knee-length hem. A small bertha collar, frames the shoulders and reaches to the short, puffy sleeves. White satin buttons fasten the dress in front and a white satin ribbon belt ends in a bow and streamers.

Several Paris designers have said they would like to see women make a more distinct difference between functional daytime clothes and feminine outfits for after-dark in the New Year.

The white collar girl may well turn into a girl in the grey flannel suit. For the casual daytime look grey flannel, lightweight tweeds and soft jersey fabrics are sure bets for the coming year.

Quail Eggs at Party

A punch party was held recently at the home of Miss Sandra Jones, 1305 Bywood Place. Guests included the Misses Eileen Jacobsen, Norma Redfern, Carole Phillips and Beverly Lewis, the latter recently returned from a trip to Hawaii.

Out of town guests were Miss Doreen Rogers, and Mrs. Robert White, Vancouver; Miss Judy Wakeham, San Diego, Calif., and Miss Nina Holden, Miss Canada, home on vacation.

Refreshments were served, the menu including baby quail eggs, hot reindeer meat balls and smoked rainbow trout topped off with a Hawaiian punch.

OTTAWA (CP)—Top-level talks here next week on Britain's negotiations for membership in the European Common Market aren't expected to see any change in the Canadian government's hands-off policy.

Shoplifter Has Month To Pay Fine

A woman who shoplifted $3.50 worth of items from a downtown variety store was given a month in city police court yesterday to pay a $33 fine.

Pearl Taylor, 3138 Victoria, told the court she was on welfare and was unable to pay the fine.

A HAIR CLIP

She was arrested for stealing two pairs of stockings, a tube of mascara and a hair clip from Vista Variety Store, 1613 Douglas.

She told the court she had never stolen before and it would not happen again.

NOT SO LENIENT

"I hope not," replied Magistrate William Ostler, "if there is a next time I might not be so lenient."

$1,000 Bail For Suspect

Bail was set at $1,000 for an Oak Bay man charged with breaking and entering.

James Alfred Smith, 2420 Doyle, was remanded for one week when he pleaded innocent to a charge of breaking into a home at 2073 Chaucer.

Court Drops Case Following Suicide

Theft charges against another to the Colonist, indicating he was going to do away with himself, he went to Beacon Hill Park and shot himself.

When his name was called yesterday, prosecutor Angus Smith rose and told the court he would withdraw the charges in order that Bjerre's bondsman could reclaim the $1,000 bail posted pending his trial.

Bold Plan
Troops
To Quit
Algeria

PARIS (AP)—President de Gaulle boldly announced last night he intends to withdraw the bulk of the French army of nearly 500,000 men from Algeria during 1962. The immediate upshot was wild, bloody rioting in Oran, a big Western Algerian seaport.

First reports of casualties in the Oran fighting between French military patrols and armed bands of Europeans said two Jewish boys and a French marine were killed. The new example of de Gaulle's repeated determination to come to terms with Algerian nationalists in the face of French rightist opposition infuriated the Oran mobs. They jammed his broadcast announcement and put on a bitterly anti-de Gaulle broadcast of their own.

DE GAULLE ON RADIO, TV
The president, speaking on radio and television on a year-end program, coupled his announcement with a prediction of an accord with the Algerian rebels which would keep close ties between France and an independent Algeria.

De Gaulle also foresaw probable negotiations with Russia on the future of Germany and other world problems, and he pledged France's "constructive participation." But he conditioned this on Khrushchev relaxation of world tensions by ceasing his threats and menaces.

BACK INTO BALANCE
He also said such talks should lead Europe back into balance, and not merely be the machinery for extending Soviet control of the continent.

The withdrawal, already begun with the transfer of two divisions from Algeria to eastern France in recent months, is to be speeded up.

DE GAULLE LAUDED
At rebel headquarters in Tunisia, Algerian nationalist sources termed the president's announcement good, and said it shows de Gaulle really intends to pave the way for a peaceful settlement of the armed rebellion now in its eighth year.

In speaking of Algeria, de Gaulle said:

'END SITUATION'
"France intends to end one way or another the present situation of political, economic, financial, administrative and military engagement, which if it remains as it is, can only be an enterprise of men and money lost while so much remains to be done elsewhere."

Smallpox
Danger

LONDON (AP)—Britain called in the World Health Organization Friday to help trace airline passengers threatened with smallpox.

The alert went out after a Pakistani who flew into London from Karachi Christmas Day was found to be suffering from the disease.

FORTY OTHERS

The Pakistani, Ismet Khan, 24, arrived from Paris on Olympic Airlines Flight 408. Forty other people were on the Comet airliner with him. Radio, newspaper and television newscasts called on the passengers to report immediately for vaccination.

But a health ministry spokesman said it is possible some of them have passed through Britain and now are scattered in other countries.

VITAL MATTER

Khan flew to Paris on Air France Flight TF-AFSA, which left Karachi Monday morning and stopped in Tehran and Rome.

The ministry spokesman said it is vital that passengers who travelled in this plane also should be reached.

"This is not just a precaution," he said. "They could be in danger."

Shark Rips
Teen-Ager

DURBAN, South Africa (UPI)—A shark attacked a South African teenager yesterday while he was swimming in the Indian Ocean and badly injured the youth's legs.

Officials said Glynn Wessels, 18, of Durban, was attacked as he was swimming with two friends 75 yards offshore.

The shark tore the calf from the boy's left leg, slashed his right one and severed arteries in both legs. Wessels is in hospital in "fairly satisfactory" condition.

MACKAY, Australia (UPI)—Margaret Hobbs, 18, who lost both arms to a marauding shark Thursday, was reported to be in critical condition.

NEW YORK (UPI)—New York yesterday became the first city in the U.S. to require firms doing business with the city to pay a minimum wage of $1.50 an hour.

It was believed that about 60,000 workers would be affected.

Threatens to Wipe Out
Redhead's Nine Friends

CONYERS, Ga. (AP)—Two young brothers were slain and thrown into an old well in what authorities described as the jealous rage of an unbalanced youth who threatened to wipe out nine acquaintances of a 15-year-old girl friend.

Sheriff J. T. Wallace Jr. said Friday Charles Byrd, 20, was being held along with his 15-year-old brother, Richard, and Dorothy Bradford, also 15, on two counts of murder. He described Byrd as mentally retarded.

The killings occurred Wednesday night in woods near a church gathering place, the Smyrna camp ground.

A third boy had his ear shot off as the slayer lined up the two by automobile lights and opened fire with a shotgun.

STRUGGLED TO FEET
The wounded youth, J. Michael Flanagan, 16, leaped to his feet and struggled through four miles of rain and mud to call police.

Slain by the shotgun blasts were Douglas Wayne Henderson, 16, and his brother Thomas, 15.

FLAMING RED
Dorothy, her hair dyed a flaming red, said she had planned to marry Charles today.

The sheriff said he pieced together the following sequence: Byrd obtained from the girl the names of nine boys with whom she had been friendly. He told her he would kill them all.

WEST TO DRIVE IN
He drove her to a children's home and picked up the 15-year-old boy. The three went to a drive-in theatre where the Henderson boys and Flanagan soon arrived in the latter's car.

The girl invited the three into Byrd's car. According to one account, leg irons were placed on two of the boys, who thought it was "some kind of a joke."

The killing in the deep woods followed.

Road Deaths
Shatter
B.C. Record

Big Toll
May Go Higher

MORE people have met death on B.C. highways during the past 12 months than in any other year in history.

Grim motor vehicles branch officials yesterday reported that 317 people have been killed in traffic mishaps on provincial roads this year—and the staggering total may yet go higher.

The previous all-time record was 316 deaths set in 1956.

Last year the highway fatality total was 290.

Preliminary statistics compiled by the motor vehicles branch disclose that the record was officially broken last Tuesday. Reports are still flowing in and the official total may not be known until the first week or so in January.

Officials yesterday expressed fears that accidents today and tomorrow might greatly add to the already shocking total.

Circle
Of Death

This many people, 292, died in traffic accidents last year in Beirut, capital of Lebanon, and government enlisted 292 students to sprawl on circle in city's centre to publicize Beirut Traffic Week, the Christmas holiday week. In addition to the grim reminder, police hired 3,000 students to direct motorists during the week. Final traffic death toll for the seven days is not known yet.—(AP Photofax)

China May Buy
Big New Fleet
Of U.K. Planes

LONDON (AP)—Red China was reported Friday night to have begun talks for the purchase of a big new fleet of British turbine-propeller airliners.

The prospective multi-million-dollar deal follows a recent contract under which the Peking regime bought six Vickers Viscount airliners from Britain despite the rumblings of the U.S.

PURELY CIVIL
A spokesman for the Handley Page aircraft manufacturing firm said: "Aviation representatives of Chinese People's Republic recently visited our and other plants and discussions took place on the possible sale of the Handley Page Herald, which is a purely civil airliner, able to carry 32 passengers."

DOZENS SOUGHT
The spokesman said the Chinese expressed interest in an order running into dozens of aircraft. A Handley Page Herald, weighing about 20 tons, costs something like $700,000 when fully equipped with radio, radar and other specified flight aids. It is not on the list of strategic items which the Atlantic allies bar to Communist nations.

British government officials regard the sale of these modern airliners as a significant political breakthrough in the great wall of Peking's isolation from the West. The Viscount deal and others which may follow will allow British technicians to enter Chinese territory.

TWO REASONS
The buildup of China's civil air fleet undoubtedly will enable China's aircraft industry to concentrate on military production and the Handley Page Herald could be turned quite easily to air force use.

Tarzan WAS Married!

NEW YORK (AP)—Tarzan and Jane were indeed properly wed—on page 313 of a book published in 1913—before they began living together, Grosset and Dunlap, the publishers, said Friday.

A firm spokesman stepped into a controversy which arose at Downey, Calif., over use of Tarzan books in the library in face of a question raised whether the ape man ever troubled to marry his mate.

The firm said "Return of Tarzan" carried this passage: "Wild beasts are supposed to be devoid of sentiment. Tarzan said, 'but nevertheless I should like to be married in the cabin where I was born.'"

"Would it be quite regular, dear?" she asked. "For if it would, I know of no other place in which I should rather be married."

"And when they spoke of it to the others, they were assured that it would be quite regular and an almost splendid termination of a remarkable romance. So the party assembled to witness the ceremony. Professor Porter was to solemnize within three days."

Professor Porter, an ordained minister, was Jane's father.

The spokesman added that sales on the book, plus the other eight, "remain quite healthy year after year."

'Nuclear Race Only Postpones Day of War'

DENVER (UPI)—A prominent U.S. scientist said Friday that if the arms race continues, an all-out nuclear war between the United States and the Soviet Union is "inevitable."

Dr. Harrison Brown of the California Institute of Technology told a national meeting of Sigma Xi and Phi Beta Kappa that neither nation desires such a war now, or will in the future.

"But we do know the kind of situation toward which we are heading is basically unstable—any major rocking of the boat, whether accidental, by the action of a third power or by escalation, can trigger it," he said.

"The most we can expect by continued vigorous participation in the arms race is a postponement of the fateful day."

Dr. Brown, a geochemist, is a director of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, which winds up its 128th meeting here today.

He said the only solution to the dilemma is general and complete disarmament with inspection and controls. In the meantime, he said, the U.S. had no choice but to continue to spend billions on armaments.

"We are trapped in the arms race and, until a reasonable agreement is reached aimed at ending it, we must pursue it—attempting the while to avoid rocking the boat unduly and doing everything we can to introduce stabilizing elements into the system," he said.

Dr. Brown also told his fellow scientists that unless their creations are better used:

● The non-western world may go Communist.

● The United States may suffer a future population of a billion persons.

● And an American totalitarian dictatorship from which there is no escape may arise.

He said the underdeveloped countries are impatient to improve their lot rapidly.

If this development cannot be attained by other means, he said, "I fear most of these areas may well negotiate their development within the framework of Marxist-Leninist philosophy."

"We see this happening today in Cuba. In the future, the free nations of the West may well find themselves an island surrounded by a vast sea of Communist totalitarianism."

Dr. Brown said advances in methods of determining human motivation, as well as ways of filing and processing data on people, could provide the foundation for "firm control of the citizenry by an unscrupulous group bent upon oligarchical control."

He said it was up to scientists to involve themselves more fully with political administration to help determine the use of their creations.

"Science and technology properly used can help create a world free from the scourge of war—a world in which most people are free and in which privacy is eliminated," he said.

"Whether or not this will happen will depend in part upon the way we scientists behave."

SECOND NEWS SECTION

VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 30, 1961

Not Many Oases in New Year's Desert

If you're not planning a New Year's Eve party, better have the wife carry an extra-large purse to the supper club of your choice.

Since public parties on the big night cannot start until after midnight, what you put in the purse is your own affair.

However, Attorney-General Robert Bonner doesn't expect his department to be "at home" to complaints after 10 p.m.

Falling as it does on a Sunday, New Year's Eve in the local wine-and-dine spots promises to be both dry and devoid of dancing.

Strong police patrols and spot checks will lie in wait for motorists who drive while drinking.

Saanich police Chief W. A. Pearson summed up the attitude of Greater Victoria's law enforcement officers: "Those drivers who have a few too many and ask us for help will get it—but those who try to drive while drinking will go into custody."

It's a Long Drought After Closing Hours

Party-goers who fail to buy their New Year liquor by 6 p.m. today will face a long dry spell. Government liquor stores will close sharp at 6 p.m. and remain closed until 10 a.m. Wednesday.

Good Outlook for 1962

Victoria, Oak Bay Set New Building Records

Saanich, Esquimalt Register Increases

Building boomed in Greater Victoria this year with new, all-time records set in Victoria and Oak Bay. Saanich and Esquimalt showed increases over last year's figures.

And building inspectors of the four municipalities all predicted a successful construction year in 1962 with Victoria and Saanich spokesmen looking for new records.

MORE DOLLAR VALUE

Only Victoria showed an increase in dollar value of new construction for the month of December over December, 1960.

Housing construction in all areas was well above last year's figures with the most dramatic increase in Esquimalt—almost double.

Victoria building inspector Roderick Clark reported less than 10 per cent of the year's total represented downtown construction.

CITY'S NEW RECORD

The year's dollar total was $10,738,391, compared with $9,394,929 in 1960—a rise of 12 per cent. The city's new record was set mainly through building permits issued in November for the $2,600,000 Royal Jubilee Hospital building program.

MOTEL BUILDING

Helping set the record was some $800,000 worth of motel construction and $1,300,000 for apartment construction.

Two $1,000,000 projects in Saanich helped boost that municipality's total above last year's figure of $6,354,889.

SHOPPING CENTRE

The Town and Country shopping centre and a large garden-apartment centre on Tillicum at the Trans-Canada Highway brought the 1961 total to $8,700,819, but it was still below the all-time record of more than $11,000,000, set in 1958.

FEWER HOUSES

Building inspector David Smith said house construction accounted for a smaller percentage of this year's total than it did last year.

In Oak Bay, Paul Cunningham reported a record-breaking total of $3,063,536 worth of construction, well above the figure set last year—$1,602,915.

ON DRAWING BOARD

Apartment construction helped account for the large increase and more apartment houses are on the drawing board for construction next year, he said.

The record was set despite a big drop in December values—$99,850 this year against $860,500 last year.

BELOW RECORD

Esquimalt building inspector William Edgington said this year's total of $1,633,991 was $800,000 over last year's total, but still below the all-time record of just over $2,000,000, set in 1958.

"We are looking for a reasonably good year next year and we think we will have it by the indications we have at present."

Silver Nail Final Clue To Wreck

A square silver nail, less than six inches long may hold the final clue to the identity of the wreck in Sidney Inlet on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

All that must be done, according to the latest research findings, is to locate the nail which is traditionally embedded in the keel at the point where it joins the stern.

NAME AND DATE The nail should be inscribed with the name of the ship, date the keel was laid and tonnage.

The clue that will help navy divers in their needle-in-the-haystack search was unearthed in an old book on shipbuilding from the shelves of the library at the B.C. Maritime Museum.

The shipwright James Bay will take a team of divers to the site Jan. 2.

Agile Thief Picks Picks

An open transom over a shop door proved a ready invitation to an agile thief who looted a downtown shop of 68 cartons of cigarettes and six packs of toothpicks early yesterday.

The loot was obtained from the Nut Shell, 617 Fort Street, to the site Jan. 2.

Injuries Second Worry

A 76-year-old woman, struck by a car at Belmont and Haultain Friday morning, was more concerned about her invalid husband than she was about her own injuries.

BEHIND

Welfare workers have arranged for the care of bedridden Richard Hale, 85, of 1430 Haultain, while his wife Gertrude recovers from leg and hip injuries received in the accident.

Police reported Mrs. Hale was crossing Haultain when she was struck by a car making a right turn onto Haultain from Belmont.

IDENTIFIED

They identified the driver of the car as Robert Caldwell, 426 Montreal.

Hospital attendants said Mrs. Hale's main concern was for her husband, who is unable to care for himself.

Lush Louis Lives On

Parrot Still Stops Progress

By TED PULFORD

Louis the Garrulous, a brandy-soaked parrot of indefinite vintage, continues to squat like a great feathered stumbling block in the path of progress, in his Courtney Street home.

Though property on either side of his ornate parrot house has been battered flat and turned into a parking lot, the guzzling parrot has been assured safety for his home for the rest of his days. And by the look of things he has a goodly number of days left to live. He's more than 100 years old already.

Louis was assured by the terms of his late owner's will that the ministrations of Chinese attendant Wah Wong, all the brandy his old skin would hold and his own roof over his head.

When Miss Victoria Wilson died in 1949, her will expressly provided that Louis was to remain on the property until he died and, only then, could his house and the surrounding buildings be torn down.

G. J. Shaffer and Capitol Car Parks Ltd. now own the property.

Owners of the car park hoped Louis might be something of an attraction but like many oracles—the parrot has become something of a recluse as well as a toadstool.

When I waited upon Louis the Garrulous yesterday, I was given the bird.

I peered through a window of the parrot house and called out, but I saw nothing but one bloodshot eye and a bundle of mouldering feathers.

It was clear, however, that Louis still lives. He turned his back on me and actually staggered to the other end of his perch.

All of this was acted out under the baleful glare of an immense limousine whose name, I discovered later, was Fagin.

Fagin did nothing until I started rattling the wire mesh covering Louis' window; then he began hissing threateningly.

I left.

Apparently even Mah Wong, the parrot's faithful attendant, has found Louis too much for a steady companion.

Some time ago, Wong moved uptown and got married. He continues to minister to the ancient parrot, however, and calls in with food several times a week.

The parrot, Mr. Shaffer said, is in the pink of condition.

"The executor of the estate was telling me just the other day that the old bird will outlive both of us," he chuckled.

Driver Broke Ankle

Crash into ditch at Glanford and Vanalman yesterday resulted in fractured ankle and cuts for Mrs. M. B. Buckingham, 420 Vincent. Car is checked by Cpl. Frank Briers of Saanich police minutes after Mrs. Buckingham was whisked off to St. Joseph's Hospital. (Robin Clarke photo.)

Boat Mystery

Child's Clothing Burned to Crisp

Shreds of charred clothing found on the body of a two-year-old boy washed ashore at Gordon Head Thursday have indicated a connection between the dead child and the burned-out shell of a boat located nearby Wednesday.

Robin Stewart of Saanich police said last night clothing the boy had been wearing had been "burned to a crisp."

LABELA MISSING

Police theorize the boy was an occupant of the 16-foot open boat found burned and drifting off Ten Mile Point.

So far, the clothing has led investigators nowhere. It bears no manufacturer's or dealer's labels.

Indications are the child was a member of an Indian family from the U.S. side of the border.

Saanich Police Chief W. A. Pearson, who heads the investigation here, said the boy was well and warmly dressed.

Court Chides City Parker

Behavior of a motorist who parked his car in such a way as to impinge another car for 25 minutes was termed "boorish" by Magistrate William Oulter in traffic court yesterday.

He imposed a fine of $5 on M. V. Dunn, Yarrow Building, who told the court he had not intended to be "malicious."

Freedom Appeal Rejected

By ED COSGROVE

A Supreme Court judge yesterday dismissed an application for a writ of habeas corpus that would free a 22-year-old Victoria man facing trial on four counts of drug possession and possession of stolen goods and housebreaking tools.

Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton, after a 2½-hour hearing in chambers, upheld commitment of Robert Gibb, saying he felt the Crown had presented a sufficient body of evidence to warrant Magistrate A. I. Thomas committing Gibb to higher court.

But the judge criticized the magistrate for refusing to hear objections of defence counsel David Hummel during preliminary hearings.

In a four-point submission to the Supreme Court, Mr. Hummel had contended his ability to represent his client had been hampered by the trial magistrate's attitude.

He said he had been told to "sit down" 15 times when he rose to object to admission of admissibility of evidence. He also was told he "would have his chance during cross-examination."

"The learned magistrate is under a misconception," said Mr. Justice Wootton. "Cross-examination cannot cure everything."

One Critical Point

"At one critical point during cross-examination of a Crown witness," said Mr. Hummel, "the magistrate felt constrained to come to the aid of the witness."

"I suggest there is a point beyond which counsel cannot properly discharge his duties to his client because of emotions generated by the attitude of the magistrate."

"I can quite understand," returned Mr. Justice Wootton, "I can see you had quite an experience there."

Mr. Hummel had launched an action for a writ of habeas corpus and certiorari-in-ad on the basis that the commitments were not supported by evidence, they were based on inadmissible evidence, the presiding magistrate "neglected to consider the evidence" and there was a "denial of natural justice."

He said the latter point did not apply in the hearing on the drug possession charge.

Gibb was arrested with two other men after RCMP and Saanich police raided a Craigflower auto cabin last October. One of the men, Donald Gray, subsequently pleaded guilty to possession of drugs.

Housebreaking tools were found in the cabin and in a car owned by Gibb.

Reviewing the transcript, special prosecutor W. Berkeley Monteith said six capsules found in the sink contained heroin.

Pushing and Fixing

He said Gibb was found standing near a chest of drawers on which there was an empty hypodermic needle. Gibb had his sleeve rolled up and a belt tied around his arm.

"It is inevitable for Your Lordship on the bench and myself as a counsel of some experience to learn the habits of drug addicts."

"In carrying on an operation such as this... Gray was, in the jargon used, pushing, while Gibb in the same jargon, was fixing."

Saanich prosecutor Kenneth Murphy said he felt there had been no denial of natural justice nor improper presentation of evidence in the hearings on charges of possession of housebreaking tools and stolen goods.

Referring to a screwdriver found in Gibb's car, he said Gray had admitted using it for the burglary of the Oak Bay Bathhouse.

"Once (an instrument) is proven capable of being used for housebreaking, the onus shifts to the accused to prove a lawful reason for its possession," he said.

In dismissing the action, Mr. Justice Wootton said the Crown had assembled "evidence which must be heard somewhere," and, while the evidence might not be sufficient for conviction of Gibb, "that (decision) is not up to me."

He told Mr. Hummel: "I must congratulate you... you have handled yourself in an extremely capable fashion."

Money-No-Object Official Flew Happily Ever After

Peter Bruton's NOTEBOOK

ONLY ANGELS HAVE WINGS: Once upon a time, not so very long ago, there was this official who used an airplane a lot and decided it was high time it was equipped with all the latest radio equipment.

So the best available was obtained and fitted into the plane. Some said it even cost as much as $7,000.

Well, when they went to test the plane with all its new equipment safely installed, it was found the extra load was so heavy that new, more powerful engines had to be installed.

So this was done. But the equipment didn't work as well as it should—the maintenance men began to experiment.

Finally they obtained a cheaper and simpler model—it only cost $3,500—and lo and behold it worked just as well as the $70,000 bundle of works.

So off flew the official happy as a lark.

And all that expensive, heavy equipment was just stored in a dusty corner of an airport hangar.

Bold Plan Troops To Quit Algeria

PARIS (AP)—President de Gaulle boldly announced last night he intends to withdraw the bulk of the French army of nearly 500,000 men from Algeria during 1962. The immediate upshot was wild, bloody rioting in Oran, a big Western Algerian seaport.

First reports of casualties in the Oran fighting between French military patrols and armed bands of Europeans said two Jewish boys and a French marine were killed.

The new example of de Gaulle's repeated determination to come to terms with Algerian nationalists in the face of French rightist opposition infuriated the Oran mob. They jammed his broadcast announcement and put on a bitterly anti-Gaulle broadcast of their own.

SPEAKS ON RADIO, TV

The president, speaking on radio and television in a year-end program, coupled his announcement with a prediction of an accord with the Algerian rebels which would keep close ties between France and an independent Algeria.

De Gaulle also foresaw probable negotiations with Russia on the future of Germany and other world problems, and he pledged France's "constructive participation." But he conditioned this on Kremlin relaxation of world tensions by ceasing its threats and menaces.

BACK INTO BALANCE

He also said such talks should lead Europe back into balance, and not merely be the machinery for extending Soviet control of the continent.

The withdrawal, already begun with the transfer of two divisions from Algeria to eastern France in recent months, is to be speeded up.

De Gaulle promised to modernize the army in the coming year. This may have referred to his plans for an independent French nuclear striking force.

DE GAULLE LAUDED

At rebel headquarters in Tunisia, Algerian nationalist sources termed the president's announcement good, and said it shows de Gaulle really intends to pave the way for a peaceful settlement of the armed rebellion—now in its eighth year.

In speaking of Algeria, de Gaulle said:

'END SITUATION'

"France intends to end one way or another the present situation of political, economic, financial, administrative and military engagement, which if it remains as it is, can only be an enterprise of men and money lost while so much remains to be done elsewhere."

Redmen Before Red Men

WASHINGTON (UPI)—James A. Carey, president of the International Union of Electrical Workers, presented departing Russian Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov with a book about American Indians at a farewell party last night.

The inscription said "This shows there were Reds here before you came."

U.K. Calls For Help

Smallpox Danger

LONDON (AP)—Britain called in the World Health Organization Friday to help trace airline passengers threatened with smallpox.

The alert went out after a Pakistani who flew into London from Karachi Christmas Day was found to be suffering from the disease.

FORTY OTHERS

The Pakistani, Ismet Khan, 24, arrived from Paris on Olympic Airlines Flight 400. Forty other people were on the Comet airliner with him.

Radio, newspaper and television newscasts called on the passengers to report immediately for vaccination.

But a health ministry spokesman said it is possible some of them have passed through Britain and now are scattered in other countries.

VITAL MATTER

Khan flew to Paris on Air France Flight TIAF6A, which left Karachi Monday morning and stopped in Tehran and Rome.

The ministry spokesman said it is vital that passengers who travelled in this plane also should be reached.

"This is not just a precaution," he said. "They could be in danger."

City Boy Disappears Police Start Dragnet

Greater Victoria police launched a dragnet at 10:30 p.m. last night for a six-year-old boy who had been missing from his 1327 Walnut Street home since 2 p.m.

Ricky Bell was last seen by his father Richard at that time.

Police were notified he was missing at 9:55 p.m.

The boy is described as fair with blue eyes, wearing blue pants, black shoes, a blue shirt, black sweater and a dark coat.

Police began their search by combing the immediate neighborhood and contacting all known relatives.

GRIM ROAD TOLL RECORD FOR B.C.

Death List Grows

MORE people have met death on B.C. highways during the past 12 months than in any other year in history.

Grim motor vehicles branch officials yesterday reported that 317 people have been killed in traffic mishaps on provincial roads this year—and the staggering total may yet go higher.

The previous all-time record was 316 deaths set in 1956.

Preliminary statistics compiled by the motor vehicles branch disclose that the record was officially broken last Tuesday. Reports are still flowing in and the official total may not be known until the first week or so in January.

Officials yesterday expressed fears that accidents today and tomorrow might greatly add to the already shocking total.

Circle Of Death

This many people—292—died in traffic accidents last year in Beirut, capital of Lebanon, and government enlisted 202 students to sprawl in circle in city's centre to publicize Beirut Traffic Week, the Christmas holiday week. In addition to the grim reminder, police hired 3,000 students to direct motorists during the week. Final traffic death toll for the seven days is not known yet.—IAP Photofax

New York Pioneers Pay Rule

NEW YORK (UPI)—New York yesterday became the first city in the U.S. to require firms doing business with the city to pay a minimum wage of $1.50 an hour. Mayor Wagner signed the bill into law, praising it as a "truly pioneering move." It was believed that about 60,000 workers would be affected.

Threatens to Wipe Out Redhead's Nine Friends

CONYERS, Ga. (AP)—Two young brothers were slain and thrown into an old well in what authorities described as the jealous rage of an unbalanced youth who threatened to wipe out nine acquaintances of a 15-year-old girl friend.

Sheriff J. T. Wallace Jr. said Friday Charles Byrd, 20, was being held along with his 15-year-old brother, Richard, and Dorothy Bradford, also 15, on two counts of murder. He described Byrd as mentally retarded.

The killings occurred Wednesday night in woods near a church gathering place, the Spyrna camp ground.

A third boy had his ear shot off as the slayer lined up the two by automobile lights and opened fire with a shotgun.

The wounded youth, J. Michael Flanagan, 16, leaped to his feet and struggled through four miles of rain and mud to call police.

Slain by the shotgun blasts were Douglas Wayne Henderson, 16, and his brother Thomas, 15.

Byrd obtained from the girl the names of nine boys with whom she had been friendly. He told her he would kill them all.

The sheriff said he pieced together the following sequence: Byrd obtained from the girl the names of nine boys with whom she had been friendly. He told her he would kill them all.

He drove her to a children's home and parked up the 15-year-old boy. The three went to a drive-in theatre where the Henderson boys and Flanagan soon arrived in the latter's car.

The girl invited the three into Byrd's car. According to one account, leg irons were placed on two of the boys, who thought it was "some kind of a joke."

The killing in the deep woods followed.

China May Buy Big New Fleet Of U.K. Planes

LONDON (AP)—Red China was reported Friday night to have begun talks for the purchase of a big new fleet of British turbine-propeller airliners.

The prospective multi-million-dollar deal follows a recent contract under which the Peking regime bought six Vickers-Viscount airliners from Britain despite the grumbles of the U.S.

A spokesman for the Handley Page aircraft manufacturing firm said:

"Aviation representatives of Chinese People's Republic recently visited our and other plants and discussions took place on the possible sale of the Handley Page Herald, which is a purely civil airliner, able to carry 32 passengers."

There is little doubt the U.S. government will oppose any Handley Page deal.

The spokesman said the Chinese expressed interest in an order running into "dozens of aircraft." A Handley Page Herald, weighing about 20 tons, costs something like $700,000 when fully equipped with radio radar and other specified flight aids. It is not on the list of strategic items which the Atlantic allies bar to Communist nations.

British government officials regard the sale of these modern airliners as a significant political breakthrough in the great wall of Peking's isolation from the West. The Viscount deal and others which may follow will allow British technicians to enter Chinese territory.

Government men, in defence of the transaction, claim Peking's approach to the West may reflect a desire to lessen Red Chinese dependence on Russia.

Shark Rips Teen-Ager

DURBAN, South Africa (UPI)—A shark attacked a South African teenager yesterday while he was swimming in the Indian Ocean and badly injured the youth's legs.

Officials said Glynn Wessels, 18, of Durban, was attacked as he was swimming with two friends 75 yards offshore.

The shark tore the calf from the boy's left leg, slashed his right one and severed arteries in both legs.

Wessels is in hospital in "fairly satisfactory" condition.

MACKAY, Australia (UPI)—Margaret Hobbs, 18, who lost both arms to a marauding shark Thursday, was reported to be in critical condition.

Tarzan WAS Married!

NEW YORK (AP)—Tarzan and Jane were indeed properly wed—on page 313 of a book published in 1913—before they began living together, Grosset and Dunlap, the publishers, said Friday.

A firm spokesman stepped into a controversy which arose at Downey, Calif., over use of Tarzan books in the library in face of a question raised whether the ape man ever troubled to marry his mate.

The firm said "Return of Tarzan" carried this passage:

"Wild beasts are supposed to be devoid of sentiment," Tarzan said, "but nevertheless I should like to be married in the cabin where I was born."

"Would it be quite regular, dear?" she asked. "For if it would, I know of no other place in which I should rather be married."

"And when they spoke of it to the others, they were assured that it would be quite regular and an almost splendid termination of a remarkable romance. So the party assembled to witness the ceremony Professor Porter was to solemnize within three days."

"Professor Porter," an ordained minister, was Jane's father.

The spokesman added that sales of the book, plus the other eight, "remain quite healthy year after year."

'Nuclear Race Only Postpones Day of War'

DENVER (UPI)—A prominent U.S. scientist said Friday that, if the arms race continues, an all-out nuclear war between the United States and the Soviet Union is "inevitable."

Dr. Harrison Brown of the California Institute of Technology told a national meeting of Sigma Xi and Phi Beta Kappa that neither nation desires such a war now, or will in the future.

"But we do know the kind of situation toward which we are heading is basically unstable—any major rocking of the boat, whether accidental, by the action of a third power or by escalation, can trigger it," he said.

"The most we can expect by continued vigorous participation in the arms race is a postponement of the fateful day."

Dr. Brown, a geochemist, is a director of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, which winds up its 128th meeting here today.

He said the only solution to the dilemma is general and complete disarmament with inspection and controls. In the meantime, he said, the U.S. had no choice but to continue to spend billions on armaments.

"We are trapped in the arms race and until a reasonable agreement is reached aimed at ending it, we must pursue it—attempting the while to avoid rocking the boat unduly and doing everything we can to introduce stabilizing elements into the system," he said.

Dr. Brown also told his fellow scientists that unless their creations are better used to spend billions on armaments.
